ABOUT CELERY.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Gardening Correspondent says:—

It is now time to get this crop going, but, honestly, if we can get plants of a red variety which have been neither starved nor stunted during their seedling stage, inducing trouble later on, we are not anxious for huge sticks, but rather prefer the smaller, solid, crisp kind that does not demand such a long season of growth. We have seen excellent Celery grown by an amateur without the orthodox trench method, but he had a very pretty taste for gardening, and was inventive to boot. He constructed a square frame some eighteen inches deep, dug in a fair complement of manure and half-rotten leafmould, into which he set the plants, a foot apart, every way, his frame holding about fifty. When well started and growing freely, he commenced filling in with sandy soil, and so filled in firmly, little by little, until, by the end of summer, all were well moulded up. All had a good soaking of water each drying day, and that probably proved the most perfect thing of the kind yet experienced. On the larger scale, under orthodox culture by the trench process, there are the twin troubles of the leaf mining maggot and the fungus spot, but few growers escape. Light dustings of soot do much to ward off the celery fly responsible for the first, picking off and burning each infected leaf showing, while a fortnightly spraying with Potato anti-blight fights the fungus foe, but this remedy is poisonous, and should not be kept up until the crop is used, before which it is not wanted.

Unsatisfactory dealing by any advertiser in this column should be immediately reported to the Manager of the "Irish Times."

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

SEASONABLE HINTS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Cockerels should be separated from the pullets early, and if they are to be kept as stock birds or to sell for breeding purposes they should be all housed together. In this way they will not fight; whereas if they are separated for a time, and then run together, they will not keep peaceable and become very troublesome. Those that are not required for breeding should be put up for fattening. It is sometimes difficult to fatten small breed cockerels, but there are some ways of disposing of them for home consumption. They make delightful chicken pies when killed at about six weeks old. They should be skinned (not plucked), half the back being cut away to draw out the inwards. They also make a tasty dish when grilled with bacon. In America many chickens are killed at from eight to twelve weeks old and sold as boilers. These are split in two and cooked on a gridiron.

DUBLIN INQUESTS.

MAN FOUND DEAD BESIDE HIS BICYCLE.

After leaving his house on Wednesday afternoon to go for a bathe at the Bull Wall, Dollymount, John Bonham, a retired railway clerk, who was 57 years of age, and resided at 53 Norfolk road, Cabra, Dublin, was found dead on the roadway at Clontarf with his bicycle lying beside him. In his pockets were a swimming costume and a towel, which were damp.

At the inquest, which was held in Jervis street Hospital yesterday, evidence was given by the widow that her husband left the house in his usual good health.

A verdict that death was due to heart failure was returned.

Sitting without a jury, in Stevens's Hospital yesterday, Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner for the City of Dublin, returned a verdict of "Death from natural causes" in the case of an old man named Patrick Mahery, who collapsed on the carriage-way in Parkgate street on Wednesday evening and died when taken to hospital. Mahery lived in the Corporation lodging house in Benburb street.

STONEHENGE.

A RIDDLE IN STONE.

MIDSUMMER DAWN AMID THE RUINS.

(By P. ORMSBY LENNON.)

ON Salisbury Plain, midway between the valleys of the Nadder and the Avon, lies Stonehenge—a megalithic relic without equal in England. During the war this famous stone circle was a familiar sight to many soldiers. There were several camps in the vicinity, and even to-day—a few hundred yards from Stonehenge itself—an aerodrome and village of huts still remain. These, however, are no longer Army property.

Not very long ago Stonehenge was bequeathed to the nation, but, as all the surrounding land is private property, fears were entertained that, unless action were taken, the circle would soon be dwarfed by all the accessories of a popular holiday resort. With the object of preventing such a misfortune, a Protection Committee was set up to buy 1,444 acres of the surrounding downland, so that posterity might view the circle in all its primeval loneliness. Over £30,000 has already been subscribed for the purpose, but the fund is still short of the required amount.

WHAT IS STONEHENGE ?

For centuries past travellers and antiquaries alike have been asking themselves this question. Nearly a thousand volumes have been written on the subject, and the ordinary man who chances to visit the spot and to study the stones finds himself confronted with a bewildering mass of evidence, of conflicting theories and of fantastic successes. Legend, of course, does not lack an explanation; the stones were magically transported from Ireland to Salisbury Plain by Merlin, wizard to King Arthur's Court. Other suggestions are that Stonehenge is of Phœnician origin; that it was erected to commemorate Boadicea, and that it served as a Danish burial ground. In England, as in Ireland, the Danes are popularly credited with doing many things for which they were probably never responsible. Flint hammer-axes, hammer stones, mauls and stag-horn picks have been unearthed in and about the circle—all of which seems to point to the fact that its builders were Stone Age men. Mr. Frank Stevens, Curator of the Salisbury Museum, and the leading present-day authority on the subject, is of the opinion that the monument was erected about 1700 B.C. This opinion is based on astronomical calculations. Sir Norman Lockyer and another noted man of science have arrived at much the same conclusion.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS.

Stonehenge, like many other historical monuments, possesses the advantage of a reputation. One's first impressions are usually disappointing. Owing to its isolated position, the circle appears to be much smaller than it really is. Nevertheless, it has a diameter of 108 feet—almost that of the interior of the dome of St. Paul's—while the girdling earthwork has a diameter of 300 feet. The size of the circle and the magnitude of the stones can be properly appreciated only from a "close-up" view. How a primitive people were ever able to quarry and raise the trilithons—huge pylons of sandstone topped by imposts of like material—to their present position, passes all comprehension. An even greater problem is presented by the uprights, or "foreign" stones, which cannot be matched within one hundred miles of Salisbury Plain. It has been suggested in the past that they may have come from such widely separated regions as County Kildare, Dartmoor, and even Scotland, but it remained for Dr. Thomas, of H. M. Geological Survey, to track them down as belonging to a limited area in the Prescelly Range, Wales. Yet how, with the lack of roads and the crude means of transportation at their disposal, those old masons of the late Neolithic got these huge blocks such a distance, is mystifying in the extreme. They must have possessed as much grey matter as they had sinew!

A SEASONAL CALENDAR.

A little distance outside the main entrance to the circle is a huge unwrought stone pylon, sixteen feet high. Viewed in a direct line from the Altar or Slaughtering Stone at the opposite end of the circle, this Hele Stone, as it is called, exactly marks the position of the rising sun at the Summer Solstice (June 21st). Also within the earthwork, lying in a line north-west and south-east, are two smaller stones, one of them marking the rising of the sun on the Winter Solstice, and the other its setting on the Summer Solstice. The location of these stones hardly can be due to accident. It is more than probable that the "wise men" who used Stonehenge as a temple or observatory, mapped out the solar years with the aid of these points, communicating the information so obtained to the tribesmen, who were thus enabled to know the correct time to plough, to sow and to harvest. In exchange for such useful knowledge the "wise men," doubtless, reaped much material gain and respect for themselves—privileges cherished by witch doctors of all ages and all climes.

In 1743 Dr. Stukely represented Stonehenge as a Druid temple, and, although there is no record that it was used as such, his theory is still widely accepted. Local Wiltshire legend has it that, when the north-east sun rose over the Hele Stone on the longest day, and its first rays illuminated the Slaughtering Stone in the circle, the Druids offered up human sacrifices thereon. Whether or not this be the case, the tradition appeals to popular fancy, and every year, on the longest day, a crowd of sight-seers assembles at the circle to witness the rising of the sun.

In 1927, when I was there for the first time, the sun never appeared at all, the day being wet and stormy. This year, however, I had better luck. In company with a car-load of other sun-worshippers, escorted by a friend who, strangely enough, was the grandson of a former owner of Stonehenge, I left London at midnight on the 20th, arriving at the eighty-mile distant circle as the full moon was beginning to pale. Scores of cars, motor-cycles, 'buses and other conveyances had already forestalled us, while across the downs, from all points of the compass, twinkling processions of head lights kept converging on the ruins. Summer Solstice at Stonehenge is quite an event in Wiltshire.

On the dew-drenched sward numbers of people were still asleep, snugly wrapped in their rugs. The great majority, however, were jazzing on the road to gramaphone music, or else refreshing themselves at the tea and "hot-dog" booths specially erected for the occasion. Somewhere in the back-ground, among the parked cars, a loud-speaker mounted on a lorry blared forth such items as "Sonny Boy" and "Ole Man River." Such a sacrilegious uproar must have caused the occupants of the 200 sepulchral barrows clustered about the circle to stir uneasily. Yet the larks in the sky overhead were quite unperturbed, and their twittering matins were heard at every brief lull in the midsummer orgies.

As the witching hour of sunrise—4.42 a.m.—drew nigh, everybody had paid the sixpence admission fee at the turnstile and had entered the barbed wire enclosure set about the circle. Numbers of agile youths and girls took up firm vantage perches on the lower monoliths, while around them a huge crowd shivered and waited expectantly. Dawn on the Wiltshire downs is chilly.

Away out from the axis of the circle, the Hele Stone stood gaunt and lonely, barely visible in the fast-paling moonlight. As we stared at it impatiently, the north-eastern skyline began to brighten slowly, revealing the undulating expanse of the downs and the pearl-grey veins of mist in their hollows. Then a glowing tip thrust itself over the horizon behind the Hele Stone, sailing up and up, resolving itself into a golden ball of light. A hush fell over the chattering crowd. You could have heard a pin drop. The mid-summer sun had risen. The longest day of 1929 had dawned auspiciously—better than at any time since the war years. Perhaps, it was an augury.

Ten minutes later, as we sailed away to seek a coppice wherein to boil our breakfast "billy," the lichened trilithons and the sinister Slaughter Stone were glowing redly, a little uncannily.

Do you suffer from Headaches?

Most headaches are caused by defective eyes. Often the eyesight is good, but eye-strain results from a small optical defect which can be corrected by wearing suitable glasses supplied by a qualified optician.

The Order will come into force on the 1st proximo.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

A Northern Sportsman : Stoneybatter : British Legion Ball.
Drogheda's Mayor : A Buchan Novel : Beehive Houses.
A Tobacco-Loving Parrot.

Tactfully Done.

I witnessed a graceful example of tact in a restaurant some time ago. A countryman, unaccustomed to restaurants, came in and took his seat at a table adjoining one occupied by a lady. This lady, her meal finished, got her bill, and, leaving the usual tip for the waitress, rose to leave. In a moment the countryman was at her side: "Ma'am, ma'am, you left these on the table behind you," he said, thrusting the coins into her hand. "Oh, thank you," she smiled at him, and passed on. At the door she delayed a little, then casually turning made her way back to the table, and, standing so that her action was unnoticed by the man, lifted a plate and slipped the coins under, secure from view.

Drogheda's Mayor.

Mr. Daniel J. Blood, who has been elected Mayor of Drogheda, is something of a rara avis amongst the heads of Irish municipal bodies. He is, I believe, the only Mayor of an Irish city who, if put to it, could pull his weight with the best oarsman in the country. He is a member of the famous Drogheda Rowing Club, and for years was one of the most trustworthy men in Drogheda crews at the Boyne and other Irish regattas.

For some time past Mr. Blood has been a Labour member of the Drogheda Corporation and secretary of the local Workers' Council. His election in succession to Mr. Carroll makes him Drogheda's second Labour Mayor. He is about forty years of age, and is one of the most unassuming of public men. He is secretary of the local branch of the British Transport Union, and at the same time is one of the most popular of men amongst all sections of the citizens. His popularity and geniality should make him an acceptable head of the municipality.

Drogheda ranks among the oldest Corporations in Ireland. The charter of Tredagh, as the borough is called in ancient documents, dates back to Norman times, and its citizens have had a long and close association with those of Dublin. On several occasions, as the old municipal records of Dublin show, there was a formal alliance between the Dublin and Drogheda Corporations, and Dubliners of to-day will long remember the imposing show made by the quaintly robed Drogheda Corporation representatives in last Sunday's centenary procession.

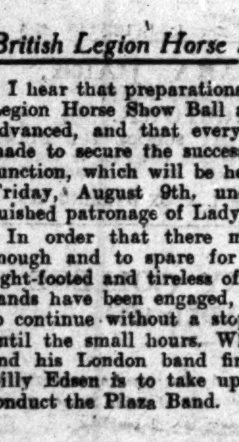
British Legion Horse Show Ball.

I hear that preparations for the British Legion Horse Show Ball are already well advanced, and that every effort is being made to secure the success of the annual function, which will be held this year on Friday, August 9th, under the distinguished patronage of Lady Haig.

In order that there may be dancing enough and to spare for even the most light-footed and tireless of the guests, two bands have been engaged, and dancing is to continue without a stop from 10 p.m. until the small hours. When Hal Swain and his London band finish a number, Billy Eden is to take up his bâton and conduct the Plaza Band.

Good News for Novel Readers.

Mr. John Buchan, who is to write the official biography of the late Lord Rosebery, is no stranger to biographical and historical writing. In 1911 he published a monograph on Sir Walter Raleigh, and in 1913 a study of Montrose, which was republished in revised and enlarged form last year. He is author of "The South African Forces in France," "Lord Minto," "A History of the Great War," and "The Royal Scots Fusiliers."



MR. J. BUCHAN.

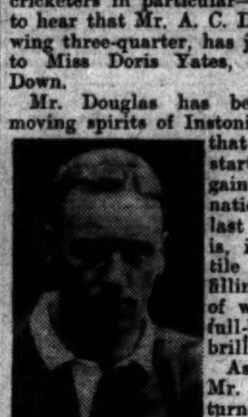
In a letter which I received from him recently, Mr. Buchan told me that he will publish this year another novel in the same vein as "Greenmantle" and "Mr. Standfast." It will introduce General Hannay, Sandy Arbuthnot, and that splendid (but hardly credible) American, the great Blenkiron, whose patience cards and dyspepsia did so much towards winning the war. The scene will be South Africa.

As Mr. Buchan was private secretary to Lord Milner, when Lord Milner was High Commissioner for South Africa in 1901-1903, he is familiar with the African local colour. He served on the Headquarters Staff of the British Army in France in 1916, and was Director of Information under the Prime Minister in 1917 and 1918. Hence his mastery of strategical and secret service detail in those adventure stories to which so welcome an addition is to be made.

An Irish Sportsman.

All Irish sportsmen—Rugbymen and cricketers in particular—will be pleased to hear that Mr. A. C. Douglas, the Irish wing three-quarter, has just been married to Miss Doris Yates, of Bangor, Co. Down.

Mr. Douglas has been one of the moving spirits of Instonians R.F.C. since that well-known club started and has gained several International caps in the last few years. He is, indeed, a versatile Rugby player, filling the positions of wing, centre, and full-back with equal brilliance.



MR. A. C. DOUGLAS.

As a cricketer, too, Mr. Douglas has turned out for the Gentlemen of Ireland regularly, and is just as much at home bowling as batting. In the recent Inter-provincial against Leinster he took six wickets for forty runs. He plays for North of Ireland C.C.

His work takes him to the Methodist College, where he is sports master, and his capacity in that rôle is proved by the fact that the school Fifteen have won the Ulster Schools Cup for three years in succession out of the four years that he has been in that office.

A Curious Wedding Ring.

June is the month of roses, love and marriages. The marriage symbol changes in fashion like most things. Circles of gold, platinum, or diamonds, wide and narrow, all have their periods of popularity. Gypsies wear a plain wide silver band, while in the Claddagh district of Galway a design of hands holding hearts is patterned on the ring. In many parts of the country rings are exchanged between the wedded couple.

But a particularly curious wedding ring can be seen near Dingle, County Kerry. In a district rich in historical interest and remains stands the ruin of Kilmakeaden Church. The surrounding churchyard contains several ogham stones, and one, very narrow and standing almost six feet high, has a circular hole in it near the top, three or four inches in diameter.

In the very early days a marriage was contracted by the man and the woman inserting a finger into this hole before witnesses. This represented "the giving and receiving of a ring."

The Beehive Houses.

In the same part of Kerry, some miles away in the heart of the Gaeltacht, there is a very curious little village which is visited by hundreds of tourists yearly. This is Couminoule, the village of the famous "beehive" houses. Amongst and surrounding the familiar whitewashed cottages stand about twenty stone, dome-shaped erections, roughly eight feet high in the centre and seven feet in diameter. The only opening is the low doorway. The sloping roofs are wonderfully built with the ordinary stones of the countryside, and, although many are in ruins, several houses have withstood the battling of Atlantic wind and storm for many centuries. They are said to be the earliest known dwellings in Ireland. It is not known whether they were used as family dwellings or hermits' huts, but the former is unlikely; for what man could endure a wife and family at such close quarters for life!

A Parrot and Tobacco.

I have heard often of monkeys who deal deftly with cigarettes or a briar. Just recently I have come across a parrot with a passion for My Lady Nicotine. As a rule he is cross, and makes short work with a mighty beak of anything insinuated between the wires of his cage. But a pipe is the exception. Fill up, and, before lighting, offer him the stem and he will take it up as delicately as a sporting dog carries a bird, and with many a sidelong glance of suggestion will push the pipe towards you. Pretend inattention and he will climb over and rattle the bowl against the wires till you accept it. Light up and puff a thin thread of smoke towards him; open goes the beak, and with every sign of satisfaction he will swallow the fumes. Blow rings and he will dart his head through them and ruffle his neck feathers to capture the smoke as it necklaces him. If you puff hard he will rest quietly on his perch with receptive feathers basking in the great clouds, and when he has had enough—and he is rather greedy—he will lift an admonitory claw in a signal for you to cease. Cigarettes he rather despises as food for babes, and he prefers to chew them, which he does with an air of abstraction, and he never spits. I cannot, however, understand at all the relish he has for cold tobacco ash.

An Ulster Story.

A story of two "characters" in an Ulster village, which I heard yesterday, is worth re-telling. The two were brothers-in-law and boon companions, and they followed respectively the occupations of saddler and tailor. "The saddler," as one was generally known, was a thin, spare man, quiet and reserved, and "The Big Tailor" was breezy and genial and as bulky as the name familiarly bestowed upon him by the villagers. But, as the story will show, he had a sense of humour of his own.

As a rule, they were abstemious men, but when they were in the mood for taking a dram they stopped working and went quite a pace for a number of weeks. On one of these bouts they had exhausted all their resources, and even the most compassionate of their friends refused any longer to help to quench their thirst. How to get a drink on a certain sunny summer morning seemed an insoluble problem.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," said the tailor; "we'll call in Mrs. Donnelly's—she's a very decent woman. I'll faint and you'll call for brandy, and as soon as I get it I'll share with you."

No sooner said than done, as local story-tellers put it. They entered the bar of Mrs. Donnelly's public-house and the tailor fainted according to plan. "Brandy! brandy!" cried the saddler, "Mrs. Donnelly, come quick, the tailor's fainted." Mrs. Donnelly rushed into the bar, filled a large glass with brandy and handed it to the saddler. Resisting the temptation to taste the welcome stuff, the saddler put the glass to his companion's none too close shut lips.

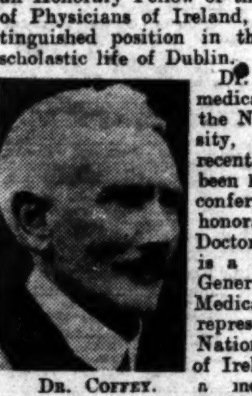
Slowly the tailor recovered, grasped the glass firmly in his hand, and emptied it, in the story-teller's words, at one gulp. "Tailor! tailor!" exclaimed the saddler, "what about my share?" "Ah," replied that worthy, "saddler, you faint for yourself!"

Stoneybatter.

Having questioned a number of Dublin people recently as to the whereabouts of Stoneybatter, I discovered that most of them had only the vaguest idea as to its situation, so I was interested to read, in an old account of Dublin, that not much more than one hundred and fifty years ago Stoneybatter maintained an air of great aloofness from the city. It was a somewhat primitive place, with a corn and frieze market, and Irish was still spoken freely there; while Cabragh lane, now Prussia street, was considered a desirable and fashionable retreat from the turmoil of town. Inseparably associated with the district since the eighteenth century is the history of a strange individual called "Billy in the Bowl," a beggar who had been born without lower limbs, and who conveyed himself along in a large bowl on wheels. He was a handsome man, and the upper part of his body was immensely strong; but he was suspected of many a robbery and murder in the quiet lanes of Grangegorman. When he was at last committed to jail in Green street, he was an object of great curiosity, and was visited as one of the "lions" of the day.

Dr. Coffey's Fellowship.

Dr. Denis John Coffey, of University College, Dublin, who has just been elected an Honorary Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of Ireland, occupies a distinguished position in the medical and scholastic life of Dublin.



DR. COFFEY.

Dr. Coffey took his medical degrees at the National University, and in more recent times he has been honoured by the conferment of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. He is a member of the General Council of Medical Education as representative of the National University of Ireland, and he is a member of the Royal Irish Academy.

He has done excellent work as Professor of Physiology and Dean of Faculty at the Catholic University School of Medicine, and as lecturer at St. Patrick's College, Maynooth. He has also rendered valuable service as Vice-Chancellor of the National University and as President of University College, Dublin.

A Communist's Principles.

In the last General Election in South Africa a Communist, Mr. Madeley, was given a certain post in the Government. True to his principles, he gave up his right to the car and chauffeur which were his due in virtue of his office; for a servant and the luxury of a car were contrary to his creed. He, therefore, sought other means of getting about, and this was in "taxis." The resulting bill, however, was so enormous, that the Government refused to recognise it!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

MINORITIES IN THE FREE STATE.

LETTER FROM MR. CULVERWELL, S.F.,T.C.D.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The discussion originated by the National Anthem incident has brought out two objections to the attitude of the Free State Government. It has been argued that it disregards the interests of the minority, as is plainly shown by its recent legislation, which involves compulsion where hitherto there has been liberty. Compulsion implies oppression, and because this oppression bears more heavily on the ex-Unionist minority than on the majority it has given rise to the belief that the Government discriminates against the minority, or, as one gentleman put it to me, is ready to ride roughshod over their interests. What is complained of is due, not to any words of discrimination in the legislation itself, but to the historical antecedents of the two groups, which stood on opposite sides in the recent conflict. The Unionist group stood for the old policy; the successful group stood for a new policy—that of a Gaelic Ireland. Is it to be supposed that, having gained the power they sought, the leaders of that group should, out of deference to their old opponents, abandon the policy for which they successfully fought, and which in their opinion—mistaken opinion, as I believe—will make for the welfare of the Free State? It should be remembered that their policy is in accord with the spirit as well as the letter of the Constitution, which, with the approval of the British Parliament, carried out the terms of the Treaty.

Thus it appears that it is not by its legislative policy that we must judge of the Government's attitude towards the minority, but rather by its administrative action. Here, as I believe, the verdict of any impartial third party must be given in its favour. The outstanding instance is that of the treatment of the small Protestant schools in outlying districts. By the common consent of those who know the circumstances, the attitude of the Government has been thoroughly sympathetic and helpful in this most difficult and, for the minority, supremely important matter.

The limits of space would not permit of my now dealing with the second objection, which is that the refusal of the Governor-General to adhere to the time-honoured custom of Trinity College—a refusal which outraged the feelings of the ex-Unionist minority—is evidence of a resolve to disregard the spirit of the Treaty, if not its very terms.—Yours, etc.,

EDWARD P. CULVERWELL.

GOLF PRIZES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—At the Close Championship, held at Dollymount this week, I noticed that of all the championship awards only two carried the Irish hall-mark, all the rest being of English manufacture. Why should the Golfing Union of Ireland go to England for their prizes? It is high time that this matter were thrashed out, and that home-made silver should be supplied for Irish Championship events.—Yours, etc.,

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND APPEALS.

OUTINGS FOR CHILDREN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—Mr. Ernest Kessell, Honorary Treasurer of the Pearson Fresh Air Fund, has forwarded a cheque for £340, to enable 4,000 of Dublin's poorest children to be given the enjoyment of a "Day in the Country," and 100 crippled or delicate children a fortnight's holiday in suitable country surroundings. During the last twenty-eight years, through the kindness of the Pearson Fund, nearly 120,000 children of the poorest class have had their lives brightened by a day-long picnic of the simplest and most wholesome kind; but the generosity of the Pearson Fresh Air Fund does not enable us to provide for many other hundreds of equally poor and deserving children.

We therefore ask the co-operation of your readers. On the basis of [illegible] for every child, [illegible] may be sent to any of the [illegible] this season:—Mrs. Long, 39 Leinster road, Rathmines; Mr. P. Rath, Belgrano, Merrion road; Mr. S. Slator, 2 Fitzwilliam terrace, Rathmines, and the undersigned:—Yours, etc.,

A. J. CAIRNS, 24 Lower Abbey street; J. T. WOOD LATIMER, 16 Fownes street, Hon. Treasurers; JOHN HEALY, 12 North Great George's street, Hon. Secretary.

YESTERDAY IN DAIL EIREANN.

A BRITISH DIPLOMATIC REPRESENTATIVE.

MR. BLYTHE THINKS ONE MAY BE APPOINTED TO FREE STATE.

FUTURE IMPORTANCE OF GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S POSITION.

In Dail Eireann yesterday the vote for the Governor-General's establishment provided Mr. de Valera with an excuse for his customary attack upon that office, which he described as "absolutely useless."

The Minister for Finance defended the office of Governor-General on various grounds, and concluded his speech by foreshadowing a large increase in the diplomatic corps of which, he said, the Free State had now the beginnings, and an increase also in the foreign representatives accedited to the Free State.

He had no information about it, he said, but he thought it likely that there would be a British diplomatic representative appointed here.

There would be expenditure by the numerous foreign representatives on hospitality and certain types of social activity, and it would be necessary that there should be some public official who would do some of these things on behalf of the Free State.

When a reference was made by a Fianna Fail deputy during a debate on the League of Nations vote to the statement (which appeared on Tuesday in the Irish Times and is referred to by our Political Correspondent in another page to-day), that the Free State intended to put forward a claim for the seat on the Council of the League of Nations at present held by Canada, the Minister for External Affairs admitted that he knew nothing about it.

During a debate on unemployment insurance the Minister for Industry and Commerce confirmed the statement of the Irish Times Correspondent in Paris regarding the Geneva proceedings about reciprocity between the Free State and Northern Ireland.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE.

75 PER CENT. OF CLAIMS ALLOWED.

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Fniance, moved a vote of £146,495 for salaries and expenses in connection with Unemployment Insurance, Employment Exchanges, etc.

Mr. DOLAN, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Industry and Commerce, explained the vote.

Mr. LEMASS (F.F., Dublin S.) said that he was pleased to see that the number in insurable occupations had increased. He thought that the Dail should be told of the cost of administration, as compared with the benefits conferred by the Act—it was not set out in the estimates.

Mr. MORRISSEY (Labour, Tipperary) said that he expected to hear something of the new scheme of remuneration for branch managers, and of the working of the scheme throughout the country. In some cases he believed that the reduction in the pay of branch managers was as much as 50 per cent. They should also have got some idea of the number of cases brought before the referees, and ultimately before the umpire, during the year.

HARDSHIP ON WORKERS.

Mr. BRISCOE (F.F., Dublin S.) complained of the hardship inflicted on men who went to England or Northern Ireland, found work there, and then, coming back when their work ceased, were refused unemployment benefit in respect of the payments they had made before they went away.

Mr. ANTHONY (Labour, Cork Borough) raised the question of men who were compelled to contribute to the unemployment insurance, and who were refused benefits when they became unemployed. Hardship was very often imposed on employés through employers defaulting in the stamping of cards. He suggested that the Guards should have the added duty of making quiries from workers in the various areas as to whether they were properly insured. He complained of the term "dole," which the Labour Party absolutely rejected, because the benefit was not a charity, or dole; it was a form of insurance to which the State, the employer and the man contributed.

Mr. FAHY (F.F., Galway), said that in the West of Ireland particularly many road workers were also small farmers, and while working on the roads had to contribute unemployment insurance. Yet, when they lost that employment they were deprived of unemployment benefits because they had those small holdings. He asked would it not be possible in cases where it was decided that they should not get benefit they should have refunded to them the money they had paid in contributions.

Mr. CASSIDY (Labour, Donegal), said that he thought the time had come when there should be a little more business-like arrangement as regards administration of the Act. There should not be so much red tapeism.

GOVERNMENT STATISTICS.

Mr. McGILLIGAN, Minister for Industry and Commerce, stated that no man was turned down simply because he had a holding. A tremendous number of other circumstances were taken into account. He mentioned that from June, 1926, to July, 1927, of 2,500 claims, 1,820 were allowed right off; 775 were turned down. Of these, 338 appealed to the Court of Referees, and 198 were allowed. Some additional claims also were allowed. The only reason why claims were turned down was that employment was available for the claimants. In a word, 75 per cent. of claims made were allowed. During the year ended May, 1929, some 17,252 vacancies had been filled through the agency of Employment Exchanges. An increase in the amount of employment was indicated by the increase in the amount of the State contribution to the Unemployment Insurance Fund.

Mr. DOLAN, Parliamentary Secretary, said that there was no intention of introducing legislation to make any change in the incidence of the Insurance Act, but they were constantly examining the position, with a view to getting better administration in the office. Over a period of years the average of workers placed in employment by the Labour Exchanges was about 17,000 a year. The Department considered that the Exchanges were doing valuable work, and that they made for more harmonious association between employer and employé.

Mr. ANTHONY asked if the exact number of unemployed in the Saorstat at the time of the last census had yet been ascertained.

Mr. McGILLIGAN replied that the census results were published in a certain regular sequence, which experience had shown to be the best one. The figures asked for had not yet been ascertained. As soon as they were they would be published.

NORTHERN IRELAND PROBLEM.

Mr. CASSIDY (Labour, Donegal) asked if arrangements were being made with reference to reciprocity with Northern Ireland about unemployment insurance.

Mr. McGILLIGAN replied that the Saorstat representatives at Geneva had raised the matter, and were promised that certain approaches would be made to the Northern Government with a view to obtain reciprocity. They had frequently made approaches, but had secured nothing so far.

Mr. DOLAN, Parliamentary Secretary, said that the total number of cases heard by the Court of Referees was 4,161: of these, 2,195 were recommended to be allowed and 1,966 disapproved; 193 cases had been referred to the umpire, who allowed twenty-five.

The vote was agreed to.

"DIPLOMATIC CORPS" DEVELOPMENTS.

MR. BLYTHE'S VISION OF SOCIAL ACTIVITIES.

Mr. BLYTHE, Minister for Finance, having moved for £3,760 towards the expenses of the Governor-General's establishment,

Mr. de VALERA (F.F., Clare) said that the Fianna Fail Party regarded it as a crime in the present circumstances, when there were people unemployed and many families on the verge of starvation, that such a sum should be voted for an absolutely useless office. Why should they do it? It was not compulsory even by the Treaty. It was an office that was regarded by the majority of people as a badge and symbol of defeat, and ought to be abolished. Did anybody believe that the elected head of the State should not be the real head of the State?

Mr. O'CONNELL (Labour, Mayo, S.) said that the Labour Party recognised that under the Treaty settlement this position had been created, but they felt that it was not necessary to maintain it at the rate at which it was maintained. There was no justification for the increase in the vote.

Mr. O'KELLY (F.F., Dublin, N.) said that when the Treaty was being discussed some of its most prominent supporters stated that the Governor-General would be placed in a small office and kept in the background.

MR. BLYTHE LOOKS AHEAD.

Mr. BLYTHE, in reply, said that Mr. de Valera's talk about other uses that could be made of the money made no impression on him. There were many sorts of expenditure which were in essence the same as that on the Governor-General, and they were supported by the Fianna Fail Party. The expenditure on foreign representation was essentially of the same nature. It did not give employment to those who were in need in the congested districts or in our cities.

"The returns which it gives," he added, "though important, are not returns which can be measured by direct economic results."

The attack made by Deputy de Valera was simply the old attack on the Treaty, and he did not propose to enter upon that. This money went through the hands of the Governor-General and gave employment. The expenditure was not excessive.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S OFFICE.

"I think," said the Minister, "that if there were different political circumstances, and if there was a full acceptance of the Treaty, and a full acceptance of this office, which, I think, will come, from the national point of view, more money could usefully be spent on this office—money which would not be denationalising in its effect, but the opposite. However, this is a matter for argument at some future time."

Continuing, he said that Deputy O'Kelly's view, that everything possible should be done to minimise the Governor-General's office, was, no doubt, held by many others; but those who held that view believed that they would have had appointed as Governor-General from time to time some English peer, whose influence would be denationalising, and for that reason they took up the attitude they did about the Governor-General. He did not think that those of them who took the most optimistic view at the time of the Treaty were at all sure that they would by now have reached the position which had been reached, where the Governor-General was definitely nominated by the Government here, where he was appointed solely on their recommendation, and appointed without consultation, or without having any regard to the wishes or desire of the Government in England.

"My own view of the office of Governor-General is different—because the position is what it is—from the view I would have taken of the office of Governor-General if the appointment had been one made by the British Government, and if the Governor-General was a stranger sent here for a period."

The Minister went on to say that they were bound by the Treaty to provide both for the salary and establishment. It would be impossible for anybody to maintain the sort of establishment necessary for the Governor-General without the allowances.

They had now the beginning of a Diplomatic Corps, and it was possible that ultimately there would be greater numbers in that Diplomatic Corps than could be foreseen.

He had no information about it, but he thought it likely that there would be a British Diplomatic Representative appointed here.

They certainly were going to have, in addition to the American Representative, who was here, and the Papal Representative, who was coming, French and German Ministers. There would be expenditure by these people on hospitality and certain types of social activity, and it would be necessary that there should be some public official who would do some of these things on behalf of the Free State.

The estimate was passed by 63 votes to 59.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

FREE STATE AND CANADA'S SEAT ON COUNCIL.

On a vote for £4,257 to complete the grant in aid of the expenses of the League of Nations, and for other expenses in connection therewith,

Mr. O'KELLY (F.F., Dublin N.), speaking in Irish, complained that sufficient information was not placed before the House in regard to what was being done at the League of Nations in respect to this country. It they were kept adequately informed, it was possible that they might agree to an increase in the vote.

Mr. ANTHONY supported the suggestion that more information should be given to the House. They had not, for instance, any official information as to the Government's attitude towards the eight-hours day. The League of Nations had a wonderful future, particularly in helping the small nations, and money could not be better spent.

"NONE SO BLIND——"

Mr. McGILLIGAN, Minister for External Affairs, said that a report with regard to the work of the last Free State delegation had been placed on the table of the House, but, apparently, members had not taken the trouble to read it. In addition, he had given, in a general way, a résumé of the attitude of the Free State delegation towards the big question of world peace. There were also bound volumes in the library giving accounts of various meetings of the International Labour Office, and the League of Nations' Assemblies year by year.

Information would be given from time to time, particularly in regard to anything of special interest to them. He did not think, however, that any useful purpose could be served by producing a monthly report of the activities of the League.

He suggested that Deputies should pay no attention to rumours they heard as to what the Free State intended to do. He did not know anything about the statement that the Free State intended to put forward a claim for the seat on the Council at present held by Canada. The seat has not yet become vacant, and he did not know when it would become vacant.

The vote was agreed to.

OIREACHTAS EXPENSES.

On a vote for £86,052 for the Oireachtas,

Mr. BLYTHE said that the chief reason for the increase was the increased provision for travelling allowances for Deputies and Senators.

Mr. DE VALERA said that his party would vote against the granting of the money, because they believed that the membership of the Dail was too large. They also believed that the Senate was unnecessary, and that even if it were necessary, its membership was too large.

Mr. FAHY (F.F., Galway), speaking in Irish, suggested the establishment of a committee to examine thoroughly the whole Oireachtas situation.

On a division the estimate was passed by 74 votes to 51.

MORE MONEY FOR GAELIC.

Mr. BLYTHE was given leave to introduce a bill entitled an Act to make provision for increasing the annual grant payable to University College, Galway, and for securing that persons appointed to offices and situations in that College shall be competent to discharge their duties through the medium of the Irish language.

The second stage was fixed for Wednesday.

THE SHANNON SCHEME.

Mr. BLYTHE also was given permission to introduce the Electricity (Finance) Bill, 1929, which is entitled an Act to amend Sub-Sections 4 and 5 of Section 11 of the Shannon Electricity Act, 1925, and Sections 12 and 15 of the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1927.

SUPPLEMENTING ARTICLE TEN.

Leave also was given to the Minister to introduce the Civil Service (Transferred Officers) Compensation Bill, 1929, which is entitled an Act to confirm a certain a certain Agreement interpreting and supplementing Article 10 of the Treaty of 1921, and, in pursuance of that Agreement, to make provision for the final determination in accordance therewith of all claims for compensation under the said Article 10 heretofore made or hereafter to be made by persons (other than members of a police force) claiming to have been transferred by virtue of any transfer of services from the service of the British Government to the service of the late Provisional Government of Ireland, or of the Government of Saorstat Eireann, and for other matters incidental to such final determination or in connection therewith."

The second stage was fixed for Thursday.

The Minister further was given leave to introduce the following additional estimate for the service of the year ending on March 31st, 1930—namely: "Vote No. 69 (Advances to Compensation Funds under the Intoxicating Liquor Act, 1927)."

BILLS PASSED.

The following bills passed the report and final stages without discussion:—

Railways (Amendment) Bill, 1929;
Totalisator Bill, 1929;
Copyright (Preservation) Bill, 1929.

AN ALL-NIGHT SITTING?

On the motion for the adjournment, President COSGRAVE said that upon that date he would move that the House would sit later than 10.30 p.m., and later into the morning if necessary, in order to get the business through for the summer recess.

The House adjourned until 3 p.m. on Wednesday next.

LAWN TENNIS.

THE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

REMARKABLE RESULTS AT WIMBLEDON.

At Wimbledon yesterday, Senorita De Alvarez, the Spanish girl, who lost to Miss Helen Wills in the final last year, was beaten by Mrs. C. G. McIlquham, a Gloucestershire woman, who had a victory over Miss Nuthall two years ago, while Miss Bennett was defeated by Mrs. T. C. Bundy, who won the Wimbledon Singles in 1905 and 1907 when she was Miss May Sutton.

Mrs. McIlquham played lawn tennis that would have beaten almost anybody. She left Senorita De Alvarez helpless time after time, and won by 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

The English girl, Miss Bennett, might have been playing the May Sutton of 24 years ago, so marvellous was the latter's foot-work and so clever the shots that broke her opponent's defence and stultified her attack.

Mrs. Bundy is now in the last eight, with a great chance of getting into the final. By the defeat of Madame Mathieu by Miss Tapscott France lost her last representative in the Women's Singles.

Miss Helen Jacobs beat Miss Joan Fry by 6-3, 6-4, and Miss Helen Wills easily defeated Miss J. Sigart (Belgium) by 6-2, 6-3.

Dr. J. C. Gregory, the "seeded" Englishman, was beaten on Court No. 1 by P. Landry (France) by 8-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. Tilden, however, beat the left-handed young Frenchman, C. Boussus, by 6-3, 9-7, 6-4. Cochet beat Hennessey in three sets, and Borotra defeated Wilmer Allison by 6-3, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

THE IRISH PLAYERS.

H. V. S. Dillon and E. A. McGuire found the English pair, "Leslie" and G. P. Hughes, in the second round of the Men's Doubles, the pseudonym concealing the identity of one of the best known English Doubles players. The first two sets went against the Irishmen at 6-1, 6-2, mainly through the superiority of the Englishmen's net play, which at times was brilliant.

Although two games down in the third set, the Irish pair still fought hard, and drew level at 2-all, but in the third game, with Dillon serving, he was twice foot-faulted, which nearly cost his side the game. "Leslie" and Hughes now won a succession of three games to lead 5-2, and were 40-love in the next game on Hughes's service.

Ireland saved these three points, and went on to win the game, took the next on McGuire's service, and after two more match points against them, won the tenth game to draw level at 5-all. This was the end of a great effort by the Irishmen; for "Leslie" and Hughes won the next two games for the set and match at 6-1, 6-2, 7-5.

The Hon. Cecil and the Hon. Mrs. Campbell failed with their ground shots in the first set against H. F. David and Miss D. E. Round, and quickly lost it at 2-6. Mrs. Campbell was certainly going out for her shots, and some high overhead work was pluckily attempted, which brought its reward in the second set. From 1-all, the Irish pair went on to lead 4-1, then 5-3, and, with Campbell serving brilliantly in the ninth game, they squared the match by winning the set at 6-3. In the final set the Irish pair led for the first time by winning the first two games, and later led at 3-1; but the English pair drew level and went ahead at 5-3. This was not the end, however; for Campbell was retrieving from apparently impossible returns, which enabled his side to level matters again at 5-all. David and Miss Round, however, won the next two games for the set and match at 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

In Dail Eireann yesterday the Minister for Finance said that he thought it likely that there would be a British diplomatic representative appointed to the Free State. During a debate on employment insurance reference was made to the negotiations with Northern Ireland for reciprocity in the matter.—(Pages 5 and 7.)

The instructions for competing drivers in the Phoenix Park Motor Races on July 12th and 13th next are published to-day.—(Page 7.)

At Antrim yesterday Samuel Cushman, a farm labourer, of Ballyscullion, was remanded on a charge of the murder of James M'Cann, a postman, on May 16th last, and robbing him of old age pension money amounting to £66.—(Page 8.)

At the Railway Tribunal yesterday it was agreed that the minimum rate to be charged for the carriage of matches, not safety, should remain at 2s. 6d., provided that did not prejudice other items. The Great Southern Railways Company had proposed a minimum rate of 4s.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

Resignation Honours conferred by the King include an Earldom on Viscount Peel, a Viscounty on Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Bart., and a Barony on Sir Hamar Greenwood, Bart., former Chief Secretary for Ireland.—(Page 7.)

Mr. J. H. Thomas, speaking in London last night, said that it was no good talking about peace and naval disarmament unless the nation was prepared to face the consequences to those employed in making armaments.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

The French Ambassador in Washington yesterday approached the United States Government with a view to negotiations for the unconditional postponement of the war stocks debt of £80,000,000 due on August 1st.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING.

At Limerick Junction yesterday there were two dead-heats. Star Eireann and Court Picture shared the spoils for the Sologhead Plate, and Hoe and Tan Girl those for the Railway Plate. Gay Soul won the Flying Plate, Another Craft the Directors' Plate, Shanford the Ballykisteen Plate, and Sirreus the Dublin Plate.—(Page 10.)

At Sandown Park Winton won the Sandringham Foal Plate.—(Page 10.)

At Haydock Park Lucky Son won the Great Central Handicap.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets were again irregular, but there was a welcome rally in the Gilt-edged section. Industrials generally marked time.—(Page 12.)

The Treasury bill rate was 1s. 2d. higher at £5 8s. per cent. Short loans were again available at 4 per cent. A large amount was borrowed for seven days at the Bank. Discount rates were steady.—(Page 12.)

Dublin Market was uncertain. Railway Ord. stocks were strong. Guinness shares weakened.—(Page 12.)

The Chinese Method.

A happy and sudden change has overtaken the situation in China. Six weeks ago the Nanking Government—in which resides the Republic's only hope of peace, unity and progress—was menaced gravely from two quarters. In the South a group of disloyal generals was marching against Canton. In the North the sinister, if Christian, Feng Yu-hsiang, though nominally a Minister of the Nanking Government, was planning to make himself the independent overlord of three wealthy provinces. He had cut railway lines, had destroyed bridges, and the armies of Nanking, under their Generalissimo, Chiang Kai-shek, were preparing to accept his challenge. To-day both perils have been dispersed. The Kwangsi generals have been routed in the field, and Nanking has reached an amicable agreement with Feng Yu-hsiang. This agreement is characteristic of the highest type of Chinese diplomacy, which always prefers moral suasion to brute force. For the time being, at any rate, Feng will eliminate himself from Chinese affairs. It has been brought home to him that he needs a holiday, and he proposes to travel extensively in the United States and Europe. Already he is on his way to Peking, where Chiang Kai-shek will greet him with every circumstance of Chinese courtesy. The terms of the reconciliation are creditable to both parties. Feng abandons his territorial claims and acknowledges the supreme authority of the Nanking Government. On the other hand Nanking furnishes Feng with a handsome viaticum, and has subscribed £300,000 towards his armies' arrears of pay. The future management of these armies will be a troublesome matter, but the Government has asked Yen Hsi-shan, the "model" Governor of Shansi, to become responsible for it—to feed and clothe Feng's warriors and to bring them, in some measure, under Nanking's control. Thus Feng has "saved his face" and the country has avoided an expensive war. The Nanking Government, now, for the first time, master of all China, can devote its whole energy to administration, reconstruction and the encouragement of foreign trade. Its revenues will benefit greatly by this fortunate turn of affairs; indeed, the immediate increase is estimated at £7,000,000 a year.

Could any Western Governments have averted imminent bloodshed with such swift and suave success? China was printing books when our own ancestors ran naked, and her very failure, or refusal, to acquire the arts of modern warfare is proof of her continuing wisdom. May we not find in Nanking's diplomacy a guide to the settlement of many problems of Western statesmanship? Happily, the occasions when European Ministers raise armies against their own Governments are rare, but conflicts within Cabinets are not uncommon. A Minister may be indispensable to his Government—or at least may be thought indispensable; yet for that precise reason he may create numerous difficulties. He may say and do unwise things, for which his colleagues, even when he has not deigned to consult them, must take collective responsibility. While keeping short of actual indiscipline, he may push an official policy to mischievous and embarrassing extremes. He may show a disposition to kick over the traces of the Constitution under which he holds office. He may adopt an arrogant attitude to minorities, and may alienate their support so seriously as to endanger his party's prospects at the polls. For such cases our democratic Governments have no present remedy except a Cabinet crisis; and so the aggressive Minister continues, with impunity, to be a law unto himself. Here, as we think, the Chinese method could be applied with the best results. The Minister could be invited to take a year's holiday in foreign parts at the public charge. If his country should belong to the British Commonwealth, he might be advised to explore that Commonwealth. The experience could not fail to enlarge his mind (if it needed enlargement) and to improve his manners (if they needed improvement). Thus everybody would be a gainer. The Government would have a holiday from the Minister, and would be able to repair some of his mistakes. The Minister, on his return, would make the healthy discovery that his country had been able to endure his absence.

Ten Years of Peace.

On the 28th June, ten years ago, the representatives of Germany's Socialist Government signed the Treaty of Versailles. In those days passions ran high; for the wounds of war still were open. Victors were flushed in triumph, while the vanquished were sullen in defeat, and the fact that the treaty was not negotiated, but was dictated to the Germans, caused bitter resentment in the Fatherland. The Versailles Treaty has been in operation now for a decade. Its friends and critics alike have had ample opportunity to observe its merits as well as its defects, and the fact that it is still in existence is a substantial tribute to its worth. Nobody in his senses ever pretended that it was a good treaty. The circumstances in which it was evolved had no parallel in the world's history; and the conquerors of Germany might have been forgiven if they had taken even fuller advantage of the situation in which they found themselves on that stupendous day of November, 1918, when the last shot was fired on the Western front. The position of the victors was complicated greatly by the pilgrimage of President Wilson, who came to Europe from the United States to re-model the world. He brought with him his "Fourteen Points," to which he tried to adhere rigidly, as if the destinies of mankind could be regulated by rule of thumb. Consequently the history of the Paris Conference was a succession of bickerings and intrigues among the winners of the war. President Wilson found himself opposed now to Mr. Lloyd George, now to M. Clemenceau, now to Signor Orlando. From this welter of disagreements and clashing interests the Treaty of Versailles, with its 440 articles, emerged—a document full of anomalies, full of improvised expedients, but containing in one clause the germ of a permanent peace.

The German people observed yesterday as a day of mourning; yet Germany has a permanent seat on the Council of the League of Nations, and after ten years her statesmen sit on equal terms with their colleagues from other countries. It is true that the legacies of war have not yet been liquidated fully. Allied soldiers still stand on the banks of the Rhine. Some of the smaller States that arose out of the ruin of the Austro-Hungarian Empire continue to glare at one another across heavily tariffed frontiers; and, above all, Russia still is an outcast from society. Yet, when the events of the last ten years are reviewed, one cannot but marvel at the amount of progress that has been made. The Versailles Treaty, very fortunately, never was regarded as immutable. No sooner was the ink dry on the parchment than revision began, and the process has been more or less continuous. Without the League of Nations none of these improvements would have been possible. If there had been no Geneva, there could have been no Locarno; and it is to the spirit that produced the Locarno Pact that all the subsequent modifications of the Treaty must be attributed. Europe, despite its armaments, despite its jealousies and despite its differing points of view, is a much better place now than it was in 1919. Fifteen years ago the murder of the Archduke at Serajevo shocked the world, and proved to be the signal for a European war. To-day such a development would be impossible. The machinery that has been established by the League of Nations is anything but perfect; but it does cause delay in international disputes, and delay always discourages war. If the League, even in its present imperfect form, had existed in 1914, there would have been no World War. The common acknowledgment of this fact is sufficient justification for a treaty which, with all its faults, has set the feet of mankind on a new path.

Children as Travellers.

During the coming week some 12,000 children are expected in Rome as visitors from France, Switzerland and Northern Africa. They are the sons and daughters of Italians who live outside Italy, and they will spend a fortnight in viewing the most famous places in their mother country. This juvenile pilgrimage—which calls to mind the mediæval children's crusade—is organised by Fascist societies. It was made last year for the first time, and its success was such that the number of little travellers has doubled. The idea is wholly admirable. Youth is the ideal time for a tour to ancestral places and to scenes of beauty; for what is seen in youth becomes the abiding place of the imagination. How shall the man be noble in thought, in language or in deed if his memories of childhood are bounded by the dingy walls of slums or dwarfed by the petty associations of mean streets? When children have seen the historic stones of Rome and the splendour of the Italian mountains they will be susceptible in later years to the exhortations of Italian patriotism and to the appeal of poets and of artists. The great cities of Europe are more than the emblems of nationality: they are the common possession of the European race. Irishmen have a stake in Paris and Rome, in Munich and Seville. What Fascists do in the name of Italian patriotism ought to be done by other peoples in the name of the European heritage; and we should welcome an organised effort to secure that thousands of Irish children should have the opportunity to see the Thames, the Seine and the Rhine before the impressionable years are spent. An Irishman rightly regrets his ill fortune if he has not set foot in all the four provinces of his native island; but let him merely take a walk through his native town and mark the French Gothic of his place of worship, the Greek portico of the courthouse and the Italian model of the big estate, and he will realise that Europe also is his country.

The Boyne Curragh.

In the latest issue of the County Louth Archæological Journal a photograph of the typical Boyne curragh is reproduced. This—as every one knows—is a light craft which may be compared to a clothes basket covered with hide. It weighs but a few pounds and is carried by the fisherman between house and river on his head. The principal use is in net-fishing for salmon. The curragh is propelled by one man who kneels in the bow and paddles, while another man sits with his back to the paddler and pays out the net over the stern. An article in the Journal suggests that the present Boyne curragh probably is identical in form with that of the fisherman who ferried the fugitive Red Hugh O'Donnell across the river when passage through Drogheda was barred. In Wales and on the English reaches of the Severn similar craft are in use, and they are said to survive also in Scotland. Nowhere in Europe save in the British Isles are they known, although hide-covered boats still are used on the Tigris and the Euphrates. During his British campaign Cæsar was so much impressed by the advantages of curraghs in point of portability and ease of construction that he employed them in Spain. The Romans adopted the Celtic word curach, added a diminutive suffix, and called this craft coraculum, whence comes the English word "coracle." Along the western coasts of Ireland boats covered in canvas instead of hide, larger than the river craft and of more workmanlike shape, are known as curraghs and do excellent work. There is no danger of the sea-curragh's extinction, but the Boyne coracle now is scarce and is an object for preservation in museums. A coracle recently was obtained for the Maritime Museum at Rotterdam.

LYONS MEMORIAL MEDALS.

In connection with the Richmond, Whitworth and Hardwicke Hospital the following awards of "Lyons Memorial Medals" have been made for 1929:—

COURT AND PERSONAL.

The King and Queen will return to London next Monday, and will drive in procession through the West End to Buckingham Palace. His Majesty will hold a Council meeting at the Palace next Friday. It is now announced that the King will spend the summer months at Sandringham, and will not visit Balmoral or any foreign health resort this year.

The Duke of Gloucester is the guest of the Governor-General of Canada and Lady Willingdon at Government House, Ottawa, for a couple of days. He will embark for England next Tuesday.

The Duchess of York has arrived at Glamis Castle, Forfarshire. Yesterday Her Royal Highness visited St. Andrew's, and formally opened the new Graduation Hall at the University, which is the gift of Dr. and Mrs. James Younger, of Mount Melville, St. Andrew's. The Duchess handed the deed of gift to the University authorities, and received the honorary degree of LL.D. After the ceremony Her Royal Highness attended a luncheon party, at which the honorary graduates and the University officials were present.

The wedding took place at St. Mary's, Cadogan street, London, on Wednesday, 26th June, of Mr. Victor Buscall, of Carbrooke Hall, Thetford, Norfolk, and 48 Courtfield Gardens, London, S.W., only son of the late Mr. R. H. Buscall and of Mrs. Buscall, and Gwendoline, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Mahony, 37 Drayton Gardens, London, S.W. (late of Barfield, Galway).

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely gown of egg-shell tinted tulle over satin, the skirt forming a train. Her tulle veil was swathed round her head as a turban and fell in long lines to the end of her train. She carried a bouquet of shaded delphiniums and asparagus fern—her only ornament being a diamond brooch, the gift of her mother.

There were two bridesmaids, Miss Freda Mahony and Miss Kathleen Buscall. They wore dresses of shell-pink chiffon, over which were short coats of gold net, lined with tea rose yellow chiffon. Their head dresses of gold net were tightly swathed, and they carried bouquets of tea roses. Mr. Arthur Grattan Bellew was best man.

A reception was afterwards held by Mr. and Mrs. Mahony at the Hans Crescent Hotel.

The bride and bridegroom left later in the afternoon for Paris, en route for Cap d'Antibes, the bride wearing a pleated beige georgette dress and Kasha coat trimmed with fox of the same colour, and a tight-fitting felt hat.

LONDON LETTER.

THE KING'S SPEECH.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The Speech from the Throne seems to be exercising the minds of members of the Cabinet considerably; for several meetings have been required to get it into shape. A meeting took place at No. 10 Downing street this morning at half-past ten, probably the earliest hour in recent times when a Cabinet has met in normal conditions. Lord Parmoor was the only absentee, and it is understood that the main topic of discussion was the Speech, with the legislative programme for the ensuing session. In view of the fact that much work has still to be done, there will be another meeting before the Speech is submitted to the King for his approval on Monday next. Mr. Macdonald's choice of Mr. Harry Snell and Mr. Cecil Wilson to move and second the Address next Tuesday rather suggests that the opening debates in the House of Commons will be extremely moderate in tone. Both men are very serious, Mr. Snell being Chairman of the British Ethical Union, while Mr Cecil Wilson is a Quaker. Both have decided to follow precedent and tradition by wearing Court dress on the occasion.

The Coal Mines.

Now that the miners have seen the Prime Minister and claimed that the Eight Hours (Coal Mines) Act should be repealed, the coal-owners are to have their turn, and Mr. Macdonald has invited them to meet him next Monday morning, when Mr. J. H. Thomas, Miss Margaret Bondfield, Mr. W. Graham and Mr. Ben Turner also will be present. The coal-owners intend to produce figures to show that the reduction of hours from eight to seven will not mean more employment for the men, but less; that it will increase the cost of coal to such an extent that it will be almost hopeless to expect to keep the export trade, and, finally, will involve higher charges to home consumers. The owners are not very hopeful that they will be able to convince Mr. Macdonald, but subsequently they will make representations to the Liberals in the hope of securing their support.

The Channel Tunnel.

With the return of the Labour Government to power, renewed efforts to induce it to take up the problem of the Channel tunnel are to be made, in order to see if it will not be possible to find a solution of the problem of unemployment by pressing forward with the construction. In this connection it is expected that the report dealing with the economic features of the scheme will be available during the summer recess. This report is being prepared by the special body of experts. There is one thing likely to prevent the scheme from being taken in hand—the venture will need a very considerable sum of money, and on this point there is certain to be opposition from the Treasury. At the same time, quite a number of members of all parties are determined to support the movement.

"Die-Hards."

In political circles to-day there was much talk concerning a dinner party said to have been given by Colonel John Gretton at his home in Belgrave square last night to a number of Conservative members, when a discussion took place on the general position of the party and the methods pursued at the general election. The guests are said to have been those members generally acting with Colonel Gretton in the late Parliament, and frequently described as the "die-hards." It is understood that the dinner was a preliminary to a meeting which will be held at the House of Commons next Wednesday morning.

Royal Plans.

It is understood that the King has abandoned the idea of going to Balmoral in August, although this move had been planned for some time. He now intends to spend the summer months at Sandringham, where he hopes to be able to get some shooting during the latter part of his stay. Instead of going to Balmoral the Court will return to Buckingham Palace for the autumn. This decision, no doubt, will cause great disappointment to his Scottish subjects; but it is probable that for reasons of health it has been decided that the King shall remain in the South.

Railway Materials.

Attention has just been drawn to the fact that a steel company is developing a patent steel railway sleeper. Steel sleepers have been used increasingly on the Continent for some time. I mention these points, because a Dublin correspondent writes to me suggesting that sleepers of reinforced concrete might be worthy of consideration, since they would be indestructible, rigid, and of cheap construction. There is much in this idea, particularly as the railways of this country are using reinforced concrete to an enormous extent in the provision of new station buildings and platforms. On the Southern Railway, since electrification was accomplished, many miles of new platforms have been built with this material.

The Almeida Battery.

The Evening Standard to-day calls attention to the experiments now being made by the Great Southern Railways of Ireland with a new type of electric battery, which, it is claimed, has a storage capacity sufficient to drive a train for sixty miles. The writer says that the railway authorities are surrounding the experiments with considerable mystery, but from the sparse reports obtainable the description of the battery seems to tally with that of the Almeida accumulator. This is the invention of a young Spanish priest, Father Almeida, who was in London just over a year ago. He was working on his invention in a little laboratory in Great Marlborough street. I went to see him, but was unable to obtain any actual details of the invention. The people backing him, including one or two well-known City men, were convinced of the great potentialities of the discovery. It was claimed that it would not only make railway electrification much easier and cheaper, but would eventually supersede the use of petrol in motor travelling.

A Railway Appointment.

Mr. James Milne, assistant manager of the Great Western Railway Company, was appointed to-day general manager, to succeed Sir Felix Pole. Mr. Milne has been in the service of the railway for a quarter of a century, and has a reputation for thoroughness. He joined the company as a pupil in the locomotive department in 1904, and had experience in many departments before he became assistant manager.

The Ulster Trophy Race.

With the experience gained from last year's Tourist Trophy race in Ulster, officials of the Royal Automobile Club have had a number of consultations with representatives of the Government of Northern Ireland and local authorities within whose areas the course for the race lies, with the object of improving it for this year's event. The club's concern has not been to round off corners or to interfere with the natural characteristics of the course so as to convert it into a purely "track" course, but to eliminate so far as possible certain dangerous elements that were revealed last year. In this the authorities in Northern Ireland have heartily co-operated, and it is hoped that as a result of the work which is being carried out the course will be very much safer than last year. The most important piece of work will be the treatment of the whole of the circuit with a non-skid preparation.

DISARMAMENT.

MR. J. H. THOMAS ON FINDING WORK.

"NO FOOLISH PROMISES."

BRITISH PREMIER'S OBJECT.

Six Cabinet Ministers, including the Prime Minister and a number of prominent trade union leaders, attended the Diamond Jubilee Celebration dinner of the Co-Operative Printing Society, in London last night.

Mr. G. N. Barnes presided, and among those present were Mr. Arthur Henderson, Foreign Secretary; Mr. J. R. Clynes, Home Secretary; Mr. J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal; Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Minister of Health; and Mr. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty.

Mr. Thomas said that he had no illusions with regard to the job which he had been called upon to do. "I am fully aware of the difficulties and trials I have to face, but I am fortified by the knowledge that my problem is a human problem. My difficulty is not alone to save the State money. God knows the burden is heavy enough at the moment, but what influences me more than anything else is my personal knowledge that men and women are becoming degraded and demoralised, and losing hope and that spirit of independence that, after all, has made this country great. This is the great human tragedy behind the problem of unemployment.

LOOKING FOR DISARMAMENT.

"I am satisfied that this Government will be tested and tried, and ultimately judged by its handling of this problem; but do not let us be under any delusion. Your Chairman said that you are looking for disarmament. That remark was rightly applauded, but do not be unmindful of the fact that you have to bear the consequences of your actions. It is no good to talk about peace and naval disarmament unless you are prepared to face the consequences to those who are employed in making armaments. You must realise that situation, and you must realise all that it involves.

"I will make no foolish promises and no extravagant claims. I want to find useful and profitable work. I want to find work that will benefit the nation, and which will be justified in the years to come. This is the testing time for democratic government. It is for us to show that it has not failed."

MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD.

Responding for "His Majesty's Government," proposed by Mr. C. W. Bowerman, M.P., the Prime Minister said:—"We have started a very difficult task, and that task is mainly defined under two heads. There is the task of dealing with the unemployed. What have we to do with unemployment? We have to carry on the ambulance work. There are men and women who have fallen by the wayside. Thomas is going to supply an ambulance for their rescue.

"But that is not enough. We must bend our energies to prevent a continuance of the evils responsible for these casualties. In order to do that we require time. You cannot have a bad disease, as unemployment is to-day, and cure it by any quack remedies. The other big section of our work is international peace. We are working away at that. Right up to the moment that I left Downing street to come here I was engaged in trying to lay the foundations of what will be the finest and fairest fabric that any Government has ever built for the delight, the honour and the comfort of the nation for which it is responsible.

NOT LOSING TIME.

"There is one thing I want to warn you against in that respect. My friend the Foreign Secretary and myself will work away at that, but do not imagine that either he or I is losing time. I saw a suggestion made that we may be losing time. We are not. There are two kinds of haste. There is a haste that conquers everything that it goes over. There is also a haste connected with the saying: 'The greater the haste, the less the speed.' The policy that we are pursuing is the first; not the second. We are not going to go into Peace Conferences without such a preliminary preparation as will avoid the failure of 1927. Every minute of our time, every thought that we can devote to this tremendously important subject is being now devoted to this preparation, which, when it is accomplished, will give you a sense of national and international security. This further I want to say—do not make any mistake about it—the peace-maker has to take risks as well as the war-maker. It is not all on one side.

"We want to present to you a nation that has been wise enough to take the risk of peace, because I know that a nation that will take the risk of peace will get peace, just as in the past the nation that took the risk of war has got war. (Applause.) We are striving and struggling, not to produce miracles for you, but, by appropriate handling, by wise planning and considering, to ensure that the great forces of evolution that make for righteousness may have a chance of changing and moulding, and transforming the old society that gave us unemployment and the war, until it becomes a new society that gives us comfort, happiness, justice and peace. That is our aim; that is our task, and we hope you will support us in carrying them out." (Cheers.)

BALMORAL VISIT CANCELLED.

DEESIDE DISAPPOINTED OVER KING'S ABSENCE.

The official announcement that the King and Queen will not visit Balmoral Castle this year is a big disappointment to thousands of people on Deeside. A leading resident in Ballater said to a Press Association reporter: "We all knew, of course, that, owing to His Majesty's state of health, he might not be able to face the rigours of a long stay at Balmoral, because in September the wind often blows with chilly force off the hills, and mists sweep down the Dee Valley morning and night. But when it was announced that the King was to be present at the ceremony of the uniting of the sister Churches in Scotland at Edinburgh on October 2nd, we felt confident that he would be paying a visit to Balmoral this year. "On the strength of that many people provisionally booked rooms from mid-August for the whole of September and early October. I am much afraid that when they know that the Royal visit to Balmoral is off they will cancel their arrangements."

An Aberdeen motor 'bus and motor car proprietor said: "We have already booked a considerable number of seats in our char-à-bancs for the Braemar gathering. I suppose they will be called off now. The presence of the King and Queen at Balmoral gives our line of business a great fillip."

Mr. John Grant, Secretary of the Braemar gathering, asked if Their Majesties' absence this year was likely to decrease the size of the crowd attending the gathering, replied: "It will affect it to a certain extent, but I don't think the crowd will be greatly decreased. There are almost sure to be some members of the Royal Family staying at Balmoral for the shooting, and we hope that they will honour the gathering with their presence."

YESTERDAY IN THE DAIL.

LATE SITTINGS IN PROSPECT.

A POSSIBLE BRITISH MINISTER.

By Our Special Correspondent.

It looks as if Dail Eireann is going to have several late nights; for on the adjournment yesterday President Cosgrave announced that next Wednesday he will move that the House sit later than 10.30 p.m., the time when deputies normally depart for their homes. The announcement was received rather dourly. Nobody likes all-night sittings, and these are indicated by Mr. Cosgrave's words. There is, however, a large programme of bills and motions still to be dealt with, and everybody is anxious—except, perhaps, a few parliamentary enthusiasts—that the Dail shall adjourn by mid-July at the latest.

Debates on the estimates for the Governor-General's establishment and unemployment insurance occupied most of the time yesterday.

Mr. de Valera led the opposition to the first-named estimate, and his objections were the same as those which he raised a year ago. He thinks the Governor-General is a useless luxury, which this poor State cannot afford. He is "a rubber stamp," whose removal would save the country about £25,000 a year. "Let us have done with the nonsense and fripperies of this office," Mr. de Valera exclaimed. To a large extent Mr. T. J. O'Connell (Labour) supported the Opposition.

INTERESTING ANNOUNCEMENT.

Messrs. M. Corry and Sean T. O'Kelly had several digs at the office of Governor-General, and then Mr. Blythe, Minister for Finance, replied in a spirited defence of the Governor-General's office. He argued that the expenditure was not excessive, and he hinted that, when the Treaty and the office were fully accepted, more money could usefully be spent upon it. He spoke also of the growth of the Diplomatic Corps, and said that he thought it likely that a British diplomatic representative would be appointed to Dublin.

When the estimate was put to a vote it was carried by the narrow majority of four, 63 voting for and 59 against it. The Labour Party voted with Fianna Fail.

Strong objection to the term "dole" was raised by Mr. Anthony (Labour) during the debate on the estimate for unemployment insurance. Unemployment benefit, he assured the House, is not a "dole" or a charity, but a form of insurance, to which the State, the employer and the worker contribute.

An important announcement, already made in these columns, was confirmed by Mr. P. J. McGilligan, Minister for Industry and Commerce. Replying to Mr. Cassidy (Labour), he said that the Free State representatives at Geneva had raised the question of securing reciprocity between the Free State and Northern Ireland in regard to unemployment insurance, and as a result certain approaches were to be made to the Northern Government.

After further discussion the estimate was agreed to without a division.

NEW BILLS IN THE DAIL.

FINAL COSTS OF THE SHANNON SCHEME.

From Our Political Correspondent.

Three important bills were introduced by the Free State Minister for Finance in Dail Eireann yesterday.

One of them is entitled the Electricity (Finance) Bill, and is believed to be the measure at which Mr. McGilligan, Minister for Industry and Commerce, hinted last week, when he said that people would shortly be given an opportunity of discussing the final cost of the Shannon scheme.

The second reading stage is likely to provide an extremely interesting debate, in the course of which the Opposition will probably endeavour to elicit a final estimate of the taxpayers' financial liability for the Shannon scheme. The debate may also provide illuminating figures in regard to the anticipated production of electricity from the scheme, as well as a reply by the Minister to the recent rumours of difficulties in the way of their scheme's progress.

MORE MONEY FOR A COLLEGE.

The second bill, introduced by Mr. Blythe, provides for an increase in the annual grant to University College, Galway. It decrees also that for the future persons appointed to offices and situations in the college shall have sufficient knowledge of Irish to enable them to discharge their duties through the medium of that language.

The annual grants to the Dublin and Cork University Colleges have already been increased, and the proposal is to equalise the position of the Galway College, advantage being taken of the occasion to advance the language enthusiasts' policy of the Gaelicisation of the University. Graduates of the College do not incline to the belief that the new bill will enhance the prestige of the University. They think, for instance, that promising pathologists will not seek a professorial opening in Galway.

WIGG-COCHRANE CASE.

The third and last of the bills sponsored by Mr. Blythe proposes merely to give statutory effect to the Wigg-Cochrane settlement, concluded between the British and Free State Governments about six months ago. The measure is entitled "Civil Service (Transferred Officers) Compensation Bill." Corresponding legislation will be introduced in the British House of Commons.

THE LEAGUE COUNCIL VACANCY.

MR. McGILLIGAN'S DISCLAIMER.

From Our Political Correspondent.

Speaking in Dail Eireann yesterday, Mr. McGilligan, Free State Minister for External Affairs, said that he did not know anything about the statement in the Irish Times of Tuesday, that the Government intended to contest the seat on the Council of the League of Nations, which will be vacated automatically by Canada in 1931.

The Minister added to this disclaimer a suggestion that Deputies should pay no attention to "rumours" as to what the Free State Government intended to do.

My only comment is that the published statement of the Government's intentions in the matter was volunteered to me by a very responsible member of the Executive Council.

THE VATICAN MUSEUMS.

CONDITIONS OF ACCESS.

The Foreign Office issues the following:—A notice has been received from the Director-General of the Vatican Museums to the effect that after July 1st next it will be necessary for all students of archæology, art and history who wish to obtain free admission to the Pontifical museums and galleries of the Vatican and Lateran to produce, in addition to the customary letter of introduction, a photograph of themselves—passport size.

FRANCE'S DEBT TO THE U.S.A.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR POSTPONEMENT.

A CONFERENCE IN WASHINGTON.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Friday.

Acting on instructions from the Quai d'Orsay, M. Claudel, the French Ambassador here, to-day approached the United States Government with a view to negotiations for the unconditional postponement of the war stocks debt of £80,000,000 due on August 1st.

Congress had already agreed to, and the president had approved, the postponement of this payment, subject to France's unconditional ratification of the Mellon-Berenger debt agreement.

M. Claudel's move to-day is the outcome of last night's debate in the French Chamber, which revealed such strong feeling in favour of a last attempt to negotiate a postponement of the payment in order to permit of unrestricted consideration of the vexed question of ratification, with or without reservations, of the Franco-American debt agreement, that the Government felt compelled to bow to the storm.

M. Claudel did not present a Note, but discussed with the Secretary of State the question of postponing the due date of the obligation until December 31st, as instructed by M. Poincare.

Colonel Stimson said, before to-day's conference, that he did not know of any way in which this could be done without Congressional sanction.

RATIFICATION BY DECREE.

STATEMENT BY FRENCH PREMIER.

PARIS, Friday.

In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. Poincaré, the Prime Minister, replied to questions put to him by various members of the Finance and Foreign Affairs Committees, which he has been addressing jointly on the subject of reparations for some days past.

M. Poincaré expressed himself in favour of ratifying by decree the Franco-American debt agreement in such a manner as not to disturb the prerogatives of Parliament. He emphasised the fact that the Washington and London agreements had been signed in proper diplomatic form and could not be repudiated by one party without the consent of the other.

The ratification of such agreements, he said, did not permit of discussion, and thus the power of ratification did not belong to Parliament, but to the Executive Power—namely, the President of the Republic and the members of the Government. As soon as the agreements have been ratified by decree, the Chamber and Senate would be asked to confirm these ratifications by passing a bill to that effect.

Parliament would be entitled to pass the bill with reservations, for which the Executive Power would not be responsible. Such reservations would have no legal value, but would act as guides to future Governments.

M. Poincaré concluded by saying that, while he had intended to give his opinion on the ratification of the debt agreements, he left the Finance and Foreign Affairs Committees free to voice their own opinions.

AMBASSADOR'S INSTRUCTIONS.

M. Briand, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, has sent a telegram to M. Claudel, the French Ambassador in Washington, instructing him to make immediate representations at the State Department in the sense of the resolution adopted by the French Chamber of Deputies last night regarding French indebtedness to the United States.

The telegram requests M. Claudel to "put all his heart into a fresh effort to move the United States."

REPARATIONS CONFERENCE.

The French Government, in reply to the suggestion of the British Government that the next reparations conference to discuss the Young plan should be held in London, has expressed its preference that the meeting should be in a neutral country.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BERLIN, Friday.

A meeting of the Cabinet to-day, presided over by Dr. Stresemann, in place of the Chancellor, who is still ill, unanimously agreed on the attitude of Germany with regard to the forthcoming diplomatic conference on reparations.

INTERNATIONAL HORSE SHOW.

FREE STATE SUCCESSES.

An Irish rider and horse triumphed over seventy or so other competitors in the jumping contest at Olympia for the Connaught Gold Challenge Trophy. This was confined to British and Overseas Dominions officers.

Captain D. Corry, the Irish Free State officer riding Slievenamon, made a faultless round at his first attempt, only two or three of the many riders achieving this success. In the jump-off Captain Corry's mount caught the pole jump with his hind hoofs, recording two faults. He still had fewer faults than his rivals, however, and won the cup, Lord Lonsdale handing him the prize rosette.

In the Class for Ladies' Hunters, five years old or over, suitable to carry a lady across country, to be ridden side-saddle, the following award was made:—Reserve, Lady Helen McCalmont, Thomastown, Co. Kilkenny—Pass-On.

LUCERNE HORSE SHOW.

FREE STATE ARMY RIDERS TO COMPETE.

From a Correspondent.

LUCERNE, Friday.

The Irish Free State Army contingent is the only British entry for the 16th International Horse Show—one of the most important events of the Swiss social season—which opens here on July 6th. With the exception of England, virtually every continental country is represented.

Most of the European crack riders, including several from the Olympia Horse Show, will compete.

The chief events of the meeting are the Prix du Stanserhorn, open to ladies, officers and civil riders of all nations, and the Prix des Nations, for male riders, civil or military.

Most spectacular of the events is the Prix du St. Gothard, a jumping event over fourteen obstacles, for which there is a large entry of men and women riders.

The Horse Show will close on July 15th with the competitions for the Grand Prix of the City of Lucerne.

Alderman Thomas Turnbull, a member of the Manchester City Council since 1904, died yesterday. He started life as an errand boy during the great cotton famine, when his parents were plunged into poverty.

FLOOD HAVOC IN BURMA.

MANY THOUSANDS DESTITUTE.

GOVERNMENT'S RELIEF TASK.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

AKYAB, Friday.

An official report published here says that disastrous floods have occurred in the townships of Kyauktaw and Myohaung, one of the most prosperous and thickly-populated areas in the Akyab district and in the Arakan hill district.

The Kaladan river, flowing into Akyab harbour, is flooded to an unprecedented extent, owing to heavy rains in the Lushai Hills, where it rises.

The flood reached Paletwa, in Northern Arakan, on June 11th, and only a few Government buildings, standing on the highest ground, escaped. The military and police lines were washed away, and the whole town was buried in from six to nine feet of mud.

On the next day the flood reached Kyauk-Taw, sweeping the country round. One village was obliterated, and the villagers fled to high ground. Several thousands escaped to Myohaung and to a hill a few miles away, but they were unable to save any of their property.

The area flooded extends over 100,000 acres, larger than the County of Rutland, and from ten to fifteen thousand families have lost everything, including all food and seed-grain.

The creeks in the river are full of carcases of cattle.

The loss in human lives in the present floods is, fortunately, small.

OBITUARY.

MR. EDWARD CARPENTER.

Mr. Edward Carpenter, the veteran Socialist writer and poet, who composed "England Arise," died at Guildford yesterday in his eighty-fifth year. On his eightieth birthday he received an autographed album containing the signatures of the members of the then Labour Government, headed by that of the Prime Minister, whom he had known since Mr. Macdonald was seventeen or eighteen years of age.

Sometimes called the "English Whitman," Edward Carpenter will be remembered as one of the prophets and poets of Socialism. A native of Brighton, he was a Fellow of Trinity Hall, Cambridge in the sixties, and worked for a few years as a curate. In 1874 he gave up Holy Orders and took to University Extension work in the industrial North. After seven years of this, lecturing on science, music and other subjects, he bought seven acres at Millthorpe, near Sheffield, built a cottage, planted an orchard, and took to the simple life.

His later works included "Civilisation, Its Cause and Cure," "My Days and Dreams: An Autobiography," "Towards Industrial Freedom," and in 1920, "Pagan and Christian Creeds."

Street corner Socialist propaganda and journeys to the United States—where he and Walt Whitman met—and to India varied his years. Soon after the war he moved to Mountside, on the Hogs Back, near Guildford, continuing to the last his poetic communion with the soil and his musings on mankind. His clothes were of homespun, and he made his own sandals. What help he needed in the house was given by men. He loved music and hated publicity, and, for all his passion of retirement and meditation, he praised the growing freedom of modern youth.

MR. WILLIAM HARDING.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. William Harding, which took place at his residence, 41 Mount Merrion avenue, Blackrock, yesterday, after a few days' illness. Mr. Harding had been for a number of years a well-known figure among the higher clerical staff of the General Valuation and Survey of Ireland Department, a position from which he retired about the time of the Truce. Mr. Harding was a popular figure in the Blackrock area, where he had acted for some years as a member of the Blackrock Urban District Council.

For several years the late Mr. Harding had edited the Constabulary Gazette, the official organ of the Royal Irish Constabulary, at the head of which paper he remained until the disbandment of that Force. Some three or four years ago Mr. Harding undertook the editorship of the Garda Review, a part which he filled with conspicuous ability until the time of his death. He was also the editor of the monthly magazine, The Camera, and was keenly interested in matters relating to photography. During Civic Week in 1927 he conducted, with remarkable success, a photographic salon in Westmoreland street. During the past week he had completed arrangements for a similar exhibition on a larger scale for the coming Civic Week.

Mr. Harding, who was a scholarly and widely read man, of many interests, had for a number of years conducted the Students' Page of the Weekly Irish Times.

During the Great War he took part in several valuable works for the amelioration of the lot of the troops, and was also particularly interested in the work of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

He leaves behind him a widow and three daughters to mourn his loss. One of his daughters is employed in a Government office in Dublin, while the other two are employed in London—one as a social worker and the other as a school teacher.

MR. JOSEPH WARING.

The death of Mr. Joseph Waring, J.P., took place on Thursday evening last at his residence, "Wood View," Dunmurry, County Antrim. For several years Mr. Waring was Chairman of the Lisburn Rural District Council, and he was the first Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Lisburn and Hillsborough District Hospital. In business he formerly held a responsible position with the York street Flax Spinning Co., Ltd., and for many years he had been technical expert and adviser to the Bleachers' and Finishers' Association.

COAL MINERS' HOURS.

OWNERS TO MEET THE GOVERNMENT.

Arrangements have been made for the coal owners to meet the Government at No. 10 Downing street at 2.30 p.m. on Monday next.

They are attending at the request of the Prime Minister, who wishes to hear their side of the case before taking any steps on the repeal of the Eight Hours Act and other questions put forward by the Miners' Executive.

IRISH OMNIBUS COMPANY.

OWNERSHIP TRANSFERRED

As from next Monday the Irish Omnibus Company's undertaking will become the property of a body of proprietors who will be closely associated with the Great Southern Railways Company.

The directors of the Omnibus Company will resign their trust, and under the terms of the transfer the shareholders, some fifty in number, will be paid 25s. for their shares, and 10 per cent. will be paid to them upon their shares up-to-date.

The Railway Company will continue the 'bus service, and it is intended to improve it as far as possible, while at the same time the competition between road and rail which hitherto existed, will cease.

LATE NEWS.

THE NEW AMERICAN TARIFF.

EFFECT ON IRISH EXPORTS.

The Times to-day, in a leading article on "The New American Tariff," says:—No country is so deeply and so immediately threatened by the Tariff Bill and by its probable aggravations as the British Empire. Of the effect upon the markets of these islands it is unnecessary to say much. The schedules speak for themselves. There is hardly an important export from Great Britain or Ireland on which the present high rates are not raised to a point likely to paralyse the existing trade with the United States. Cotton cloths, woollen fabrics, certain linen goods, high-speed steel, and even high-speed steel "scrap" may be mentioned among the long list of manufactured articles on which heavy burdens are imposed. The Dominions and many of the Colonies suffer with the home country.

Naturally, the threat to Canada is gravest and most immediate, and already its effect upon the relations between her and the United States is not the least of President Hoover's anxieties. Canada is the best customer of the United States. Last year she imported goods from them valued at over £165,000,000, and exported goods to them valued at over £98,000,000, while over £200,000,000 of United States capital finds lucrative investment across the border. To begin a tariff war with so profitable a customer, who is also a friendly and trusted neighbour, is a step from which any President who is a statesman or an economist must shrink, and from which it may be supposed all the best opinion of the Republic shrinks also. Yet it must be owned, with whatever reluctance, that this scheme of tariff revision appears to make counter-measures necessary as acts of self-defence.

Canadian opinion and feeling are already much moved. The tariff is believed to have been a material factor in the defeat of the Liberal Government in Saskatchewan. The Leader of the Opposition challenged the Government upon it in the Dominion House of Commons the other day, and if it is retained it is sure to play an important part in the Canadian general elections next year.

Meanwhile complaints come from Australia that her frozen meat trade may suffer, while France and Italy in Europe, and the Argentine and other States in Latin America are alarmed at the prospect of heavy losses under the schedules affecting their chief exports. Signor Martelli, the Italian Minister of Finance, very pertinently asked in the Chamber recently how Italy is to go on paying four millions of lire a year to the United States, while she is only able to make payment in goods to the value of one milliard and a half. Appeals for consideration on grounds of generosity are not very dignified, and they do not affect the American masses with whom the decision lies. To them the tariff is a matter of business, to be treated on strictly business lines. Until practical experience brings home to them that excessive duties hurt their own pockets, their faith in ever higher and more comprehensive tariffs will remain untouched.

THE LICENSING OF BULLS.

NEW REGULATIONS.

It has come to the notice of the Free State Department of Agriculture and the Ministry of Agriculture, Northern Ireland, that the arrangement which has been in force, whereby bulls which were either licensed or rejected in the Irish Free State, were automatically licensed or rejected when imported into Northern Ireland, and vice versa, has been abused by some cattle dealers who have made a practice of transferring across the border bulls which, subsequent to being licensed, have not been properly cared, and, therefore, have deteriorated, and become unsuitable for breeding purposes. In these circumstances, it has been decided to terminate the existing arrangements, except in so far as bulls which are passed for licences at the shows and sales specified below are concerned, and the following new arrangement will come into operation on the 1st August, 1929:—

1. Every bull of the prescribed age brought into the Irish Free State from Northern Ireland (except those which are passed for licences at the shows and sales specified below, where bulls are selected for premiums) will require to be examined by inspectors of the Department of Agriculture, Irish Free State, and will be either licensed or rejected on its merits. It may, therefore, happen that a bull licensed in Northern Ireland will be rejected for a licence in the Irish Free State.

2. Every bull of the prescribed age brought into Northern Ireland from the Free State (except those which are passed for licences at the shows and sales specified below, where bulls are selected for premiums) will require to be examined by inspectors of the Ministry of Agriculture, Northern Ireland, and will be either licensed or rejected on its merits. It may, therefore, happen that a bull licensed in the Irish Free State will be rejected for a licence in Northern Ireland.

3. An arrangement has been made between the Department of Agriculture, Irish Free State, and the Ministry of Agriculture, Northern Ireland, whereby bulls passed for licences at the under-mentioned spring shows and sales will be licensed either in the Irish Free State or in Northern Ireland on application to the appropriate Ministry and on payment of the prescribed fees.

The exceptions referred to above are:—

Irish Free State—Royal Dublin Society, Dublin, February or March.

Northern Ireland—Royal Ulster Agricultural Society, Belfast, February or March; North-West of Ireland Agricultural Society, Londonderry, February or March.

PRICE OF BENZOL MIXTURE.

IRISH B.P. COMPANY'S OUTING.

SUCCESSFUL ARRANGEMENTS.

The tradition of good weather which has followed the Irish B.P. Company's annual staff outing was maintained for this year's visit to Woodbrook on the 27th inst. Thanks to the kindness of Mr. L. Lemass and the committee at Woodbrook, the arrangements made for the comfort of all present left nothing to be desired.

An American tennis tournament and golf competitions and a most enjoyable programme of athletic sports were carried out. At the conclusion of these the prizes were presented by Mrs. McHutchison, after which a very successful dance brought the day's sport to a fitting conclusion.

Among those present were:—Messrs. J. W. Forrester and W. Gilvray (London), C. W. Murphy, general manager; Dr. R. R. Lawton, deputy manager, and J. McHutchison, deputy manager; W. Joyce, assistant manager, and W. A. Burton, branch engineer.

GLASGOW FIRE THRILL.

GUESTS FLEE FROM HOTEL.

Over a hundred guests were obliged to leave the Waverley Hotel, Glasgow, when a fire was discovered at an early hour yesterday in a neighbouring building, occupied by Messrs. Woolworth's. The store is in a densely populated tenement district, and scenes of confusion were witnessed when parents, with scantily-clad children, rushed into the streets. Messrs. Woolworth's building was gutted.

PHŒNIX PARK MOTOR RACES.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR DRIVERS.

DATES FOR THE TRIAL RUNS.

THE NUMBER 13.

Matters have progressed so far in the preparations for the International Grand Prix Motor Races, which will be held in the Phœnix Park, Dublin, in a fortnight's time, that the Organising Committee were able to issue yesterday evening the full instructions and regulations for competing drivers and cars.

These instructions and regulations are very comprehensive and of considerable interest. They mark one of the last stages of the many months of preparation. So excellently have the Organising Committee conducted their work that little now remains to be done in matters of organisation. Of course, the routine and office work grows heavier daily.

THE NUMBER 13.

It is noteworthy that, in deference to the well-known superstition of motor racing drivers, the Number 13 is omitted from the official numbers that every car will have to carry. It may be recalled, however, that the Organising Committee refused to alter the dates of the races—July 12th and 13th.

The competing cars and their drivers will begin to arrive in Dublin during the coming week-end, when the city will begin its arrangements for the reception of the big contingents that are expected from overseas and from various parts of the Free State and Northern Ireland.

PRACTICE RUNS.

Cars will be allowed to have practice runs on the course on the mornings of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 9th, 10th and 11th July.

In order to avoid overcrowding on the course it has been decided to divide the time available each morning into two sections, one being allotted to the Classes H.G. and F. and the other to Classes E.D. and C.B.A., the times being allocated as follows:—

TUESDAY, 9th inst.

Classes E.D. and C.B.A.—7 a.m. to 8 a.m.

Classes H.G. and F.—8 a.m. to 9 a.m.

WEDNESDAY, 10th inst.

Classes H.G. and F.—7 a.m. to 8 a.m.

Classes E.D. and C.B.A.—8 a.m. to 9 a.m.

THURSDAY, 11th inst.

Classes E.D. and C.B.A.—7 a.m. to 8 a.m.

Classes H.G. and F.—8 a.m. to 9 a.m.

The public will not be admitted to the Park during these hours.

Cars and tenders used in connection with practice runs will enter the Phœnix Park by the Islandbridge gate, and proceed direct to the starting line. This line during practice runs will be at the Timekeeper's box, and the cars which are ready to start at the time specified for the commencement of practice will be started from this line. The cars which are not ready to start must proceed to the pits, and when ready will be started from the pits by the Pit Marshal. No car is allowed to start after the first batch of cars are despatched until instructions are given by the Pit Marshal to start.

FIVE LAPS MINIMUM.

The cars starting practice at 7 a.m. must stop at 7.30 a.m., when the stop signal flag is shown, and on approaching the Timekeepers' box will turn off the course to the right as directed. The pits must be immediately cleared so that they will be available for the next classes at 8 a.m. The cars must remain in the positions allotted to them until 9 a.m., when all practice is stopped.

The cars due for practice at 8 a.m. will enter the park by the Island Bridge gate and proceed direct to the starting line. They will be stopped by the Marshal in charge before reaching the course, and must remain in position as directed until instructed by the Marshal to proceed on to the course. They will be started under the same conditions as specified for the previous classes. The actual starting time will be 8.10 so as to allow pits to be cleared by the previous classes and preparation of pits for practice. At 9 a.m. all practice must stop when the stop flag is shown.

All nominated drivers, including the spare driver, if any, must complete a minimum of five laps of the course during the official practising hours and under observation by the club. No driver may commence a practice run unless his car is equipped with the official number board properly secured to the front of the offside head lamp. Spare cars may be used for practice, provided that leave to do so has been obtained from the club and special numbers allotted to the car for the purpose of practising.

EXAMINATION OF CARS.

The examination of cars prior to the race will be undertaken at the Civic Guard Dépôt, Phœnix Park, on the following dates:—

Classes H. G. and F. on Wednesday, July 10th.

Classes E. D. and C. B. A. on Thursday, July 11th.

All cars competing must arrive at the entrance gate of the dépôt at the time instructed, and accompanied by the drivers and mechanics nominated and ready in all respects as required by the regulations. If any car arrives later than the time specified, or if anything required by the regulations has been left undone, the entrant of the car may be fined a sum not exceeding £2 for every hour's delay until the requirements of the regulations are complied with.

Any car arriving more than four hours after the specified time for examination may not be allowed to start in the race. Cars should enter the main gate of the dépôt at the time specified for the car to arrive, and the time of arrival will be taken. Cars will then proceed to the examination shed as directed.

AFTER THE INSPECTION.

On arrival at the examination shed the petrol tank must be emptied, and after the tank is examined it may be filled with petrol as required by the entrant, under the supervision of the official in charge of petrol supply; the cap of the petrol tank will then be sealed, and this seal must be unbroken when the car arrives at its pit on the day of the race.

After the inspection is completed the car will proceed to the weighbridge, and before being weighed all tools and spares must be removed.

After weighing the cars may leave the dépôt, and they may, if they wish, carry out any further practice runs on the course at the specified times, if any available; but the cars must arrive at their pits on the morning of the race with the seal of the petrol tank unbroken. Further supplies of petrol may only be put in the tank after the seal has been broken by the marshal in charge of the pits.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE RACES.

Cars up to 1,500 c.c. will race on July 12th, and cars over 1,500 c.c. will race on July 13th. The time for the start of each race is 1.30 p.m., and each race is expected to last for from four to five hours.

Cars competing in the race, together with spare car or tender, must enter the Park by the Island Bridge Gate on the day of the race and proceed direct to the pits.

Cars, with drivers and mechanics, must be at the pit not later than two hours before the start of the race, and the cars, with their drivers and mechanics, must be in the positions allotted to them at the starting point half-an-hour before the start. The engines of the cars must be stopped for the space of the quarter of an hour immediately preceding the start, all doors of the bodies being closed.

THE START AND THE FINISH.

Drivers and mechanics will be lined up opposite to their cars before the start. The starting signal will be given by dropping a flag at the starting hour, after which the drivers and mechanics must proceed to start the engine with the electric starting motor and depart.

During the race any driver who brings his car to the pit either for refilling or repairs, or for any purpose whatsoever, must stop the car's engine on arrival at the pit; it may only be restarted when leaving the pit.

At the conclusion of the race, cars which finish must be driven to positions which will be indicated for them by the officials, and remain under the instructions of those officials, as they may be required for examination in some selected place at a given time. If possible, cars, the drivers of which have abandoned the race, must be moved off the course to an enclosure or position indicated to them by an official. A yellow flag will be displayed at the pits thirty minutes after the first car to complete the course has passed, after which time no car will be permitted to commence a fresh lap.

CLONTARF CASTLE FETE.

SUBSTANTIAL TAKINGS FOR THE ROTUNDA HOSPITAL.

There was a good attendance, the weather being glorious, and the takings from all sources reached a substantial figure.

Mr. F. A. Sterling, the United States Minister Plenipotentiary, in declaring the fête open, said that its object was a very deserving one. Many of his fellow-countrymen from the United States of America had come to study in that hospital, and had returned with a knowledge which was of the utmost benefit, not only to the women and babies of America, but of the civilised globe.

He had not been long in Ireland, but he had been long enough to appreciate the work of the Rotunda Hospital. As they were enjoying themselves, and putting their hands in their pockets they would remember that they were helping a worthy cause—that they were helping the women and babies fro mall parts of Ireland.

The Rotunda Hospital had existed for nearly 200 years. Might it long continue to exist, and to do all that good for which it had been famous in the past.

Let them imagine a place where twelve babies were born every day—in other words, which was responsible for four thousand new lives every year. Not only was it responsible for that, but it was also responsible for curing the ailments of thousands of women; for giving advice to expectant mothers; for attending sick babies, and for other work of inestimable value to the community. He sincerely hoped that not only would that fête succeed in raising a large sum of money, but that those who were not able to come would send donations great and small.

Finally, he asked them to visit the stalls, concerts, and other attractions, spend plenty of money, and go away with empty pockets and the satisfaction that they had done good. (Applause.)

The Sweet Stall, which was under the presidency of Miss Ethne Pim, and the concerts, held under the direction of Mr. Lennox Braid, were inadvertently omitted from the report of the fête which appeared in yesterday's paper.

THE MURDER OF A POSTMAN.

CASE AGAINST A FARM LABOURER.

At a Special Court in Antrim yesterday a young farm labourer, Samuel Cushman, of Ballyscullion, was remanded until Wednesday next on a charge of having murdered a postman named James McCann at Millquarter, Toome, on May 16th last.

McCann was found shot in a laneway, and £66, old age pension money which he carried in a bag, was missing.

The prisoner, who is about 35 years of age, is so small that he could not be seen by the presiding magistrate when sitting in the dock, and he was given a seat outside it. He was represented by Mr. John Taylor, solicitor, Ballymena.

THE CROWN CASE.

Mr. W. H. Mussen, Crown Solicitor, who prosecuted, said that McCann took the letters from the Toome Post Office to Crosskeys Post Office, in a little village named Milltown, delivering the letters along the main road on the way. He generally travelled on a bicycle, and on the morning of the murder he carried, in addition to the letters, a bag containing £66 in 105 Treasury notes. It was known generally in the district that he carried the old age pension money on Thursday mornings. He was last seen alive on that morning about a quarter of a mile from Crosskeys Post Office.

The Crown case was that he was induced to go up a lane by some person, possibly, added Mr. Mussen, to give him a drink of poteen, and that he was shot and robbed. It was suggested that the prisoner was the person, and it would be proved that he had concealed his bicycle in some bushes at the other end of the lane. Apparently he had not been able to remove it until the afternoon.

Mr. Mussen said that witnesses would be called as to the prisoner's movements on the morning of the murder.

When inquiries were being made by the police the accused went at once to people whom he thought might be able to give information as to his whereabouts—namely, Mrs. Robinson and Miss Campbell—and asked them if they had seen the police and what information they had given.

When the accused was subsequently interviewed by the police he denied that he had met or spoken to Mrs. Robinson or Miss Campbell on that morning. On seeing the importance of being able to prove his whereabouts at about the time of the murder, which he knew took place about 9.45, the prisoner stated that he was in a potato field from five minutes past nine until 11 a.m. That would be flatly contradicted by two men named Marron and Neeson, who were working in a bog a few yards away from the potato field. They saw him entering the field at about 11 o'clock, and remaining there some ten minutes, after which he hurried away. They had also the evidence of Mrs. Robinson and Miss Campbell, who saw him at 10.25 on that morning fully a mile from the potato field.

The accused man's house was searched by the police, and in it was found the butt of a shot gun; the barrel was missing. When asked by the police about this, the prisoner said that he never had the barrel in the house at Ballyscullion, and that it was lost in January when he was removing from the house that he had previously lived in near Milltown. Evidence would be given that the prisoner purchased the gun after removing to his present residence, and that the complete gun, including the barrel, was seen with him in his present residence two months ago.

In addition to this evidence, the Crown intended to give evidence of a most remarkable fact. Close to the place where the murder took place a small piece of cloth was found. This had been very carefully examined and compared with the coat which the accused was wearing, and they found that the texture, which was somewhat peculiar, having two red sheds of spun silk running through it, corresponded in every particular and was identical in fineness and width with het cloth in the prisoner's coat. The Crown suggested that that patch of cloth was probably torn from the prisoner's coat by the gun when he was taking it from the inside of the coat immediately before the murder. A further remarkable fact was that there was a hole somewhere about the arm or elbow of the coat. There was a tag at this aperture, and evidence would be given which would lead to the conclusion that the piece of cloth found, which was a piece of the inside seam, was at one time joined to that tag.

Professor Frederick Bradbury, Belfast, stated that on the 17th June he received from Sergeant Hannon, Toome, a man's coat and a small piece of cloth. He subjected these to the usual textile and chemical tests. There was a hole in the sleeve of the coat and a tag at the edge of the hole. His opinion was that that piece of cloth came from the hole in the sleeve, but he could not prove it.

The further hearing was adjourned until Wednesday.

THE CANALS OF MARS

have been a subject of keen controversy amongst astronomers ever since the date of their discovery fifty years ago—mainly because they lie on the very fringe of vision. They have been called everything from an engineering triumph to an optical illusion.

Science Polishes and Creams provoke no controversy, nor is there any trace of illusion about their supreme efficiency. It is a solid fact that only the highest grade materials are used in their manufacture, and an equally solid fact that no other Polishes approach them in excellence of results.

COMPULSORY IRISH.

ITS TYRANNY IN SMALL SCHOOLS.

BISHOP AND JACK-BOOT POLICY.

In an address to the Killaloe Diocesan Synod, yesterday, the Bishop of Killaloe (Dr. Patton), after dealing with some matters of importance in the life of the Diocese, observed that he had recently made some observations in reference to the compulsory teaching of the Irish language which had evoked much adverse comment.

I shall vindicate these observations, the Bishop proceeded to say, feeling sure that it will be an evil day for Ireland if it should ever cease to be "the land where, girt with friend or foe, a man may speak the thing he will."

I believe that for the members of the Church of a minority the compulsory teaching of Irish, as now prescribed, is a tyranny. This is not primarily a religious question. It is not because we are adherents of one Church more than another, but because we are the adherents of a small minority that the system beats so hardly on us. Ninety per cent. of our schools in the remote South and West are one-teacher schools. Our numbers do not entitle us to more than this single teacher.

LOWERING THE GENERAL STANDARD.

In an ordinary school of 20 to 25 pupils, with children ranging in age from 5 to 15, every child must have one hour's teaching in Irish every day. It is clearly impossible within the limits of anything worthy of the name of teaching that all the children of different ages should be taught together. Children of 6 and of 14 cannot form members of the same class. The best that the teacher can do is to divide the school into two classes of pupils from approximately 5 to 10, and 10 to 15. This means that the teacher must take two hours a day in giving instruction in Irish; and two hours a day is half of the whole time available for secular instruction. I say that the extravagantly large amount of time thus devoted to the teaching of Irish is lowering the general standard of education.

I can well conceive that in larger schools Irish can be efficiently taught, assuming the efficiency of the teachers, but it is impossible in the ordinary one-teacher school. Parents are well aware of the fact, and as a consequence they object to the system which in practice involves a penalisation of parent and pupil alike.

RUTHLESS PRESSURE.

If we make a protest to the Government—and protests have been made by most distinguished representatives of the minority—nothing is done; if we ask them to ease the situation, a polite negative is the only reply.

It ought not to be necessary to repeat the obvious truth that for some of our children seeking appointments in Ireland, the knowledge of Irish is essential, and, further, a bilingual pupil is better than one who knows but one language, but the whole pressure of the system is now being ruthlessly applied to all our boys and girls alike, and parents and children are being sacrificed to the inexorable logic of circumstances. The rights of conscience possessed by parents in determining whether their children shall, or shall not, be taught Irish are ignored. A Government which, whether by a jack-boot or a thumbscrew policy, enforces such a system is plainly a coercion Government.

THE SMALL SCHOOLS.

It may be said that the Government, having determined its policy, cannot alter it to suit any section of the population. But it could, if it would, relax the rule which causes half of the whole time devoted to education to be taken up in teaching the Irish language. It could, if it would, without imperilling its policy, demand no more than one hour of teaching in the day—that is, half an hour each for two separate classes. It could, if it would, distinguish between the 90 per cent. of our schools in the South and West and the large schools with two or more teachers which do such excellent work among those belonging to the majority. It is a mistake to treat these schools, amid such widely divergent circumstances, as if they formed a kind of muddled identity. All must now submit to a policy suitable for the majority, but distressingly ill-adapted for our smaller schools.

WIDER OUTLOOK NECESSARY.

One unfortunate result of the Government's policy is that the language of Thomas Moore, of Burke, of Goldsmith, of Yeats, is being squeezed into a corner. Boys of 10 and 12 read the English tongue as children of 8 were wont to do. Generally speaking, the standard of education is being lowered, and anything which tends towards a self-satisfied insularity is bad for Ireland. We need a wider outlook on education if our country is to take the proud position among the nations of the world to which the abilities of her sons and daughters so fully entitle her.

THE BREATH OF LIBERTY.

Let me say a word on a brighter, more pleasant, subject. On Sunday last a mighty concourse of our fellow-countrymen celebrated the centenary of their emancipation in 1829. It was a gladsome thanksgiving for deliverance from the thraldom of tyranny, and with it all Irishmen can rejoice. No people can be long denied the rights of conscience, and, as the great Grattan said: "The breath of liberty, like the word of the holy man, will not die with the prophet, but will survive him." The intolerance manifested on all sides during the struggles of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries has had its day. It was the breath of liberty which inspired the celebrations, and can still invigorate the pulse of our national life.

We, Irishmen, who may differ in many things, yet exist not by way of competition, but by way of contribution to the well-being of the country which we love best on earth.

BROADCASTING SERVICE.

CHANGE OF DUBLIN AND CORK WAVE LENGTHS.

The Free State Department of Posts and Telegraphs announces that to-morrow the wave-length of the Dublin Station will be changed from 411 metres (730 kilocycles) to 413 metres (725 kilocycles), and the wave-length of the Cork Station from 222 metres (1,350 kilocycles) to 225 metres (1,337 kilocycles). As the changes are small, only slight readjustments of the tuning of receivers—by setting the dial readings for each station a little higher than at present—will be necessary.

The changes are a result of adoption of the wave-length allocation arranged by the Conference of Governments held recently at Prague. The object of this plan is the improvement of general reception conditions throughout Europe.

TO-MORROW'S EXCURSION TO RHYL.

For their second annual excursion to-morrow, the Children of Mary, St. Andrew's, Westland row, Dublin, have arranged a visit to Rhyl. They will travel by special boat from Kingstown to Holyhead, and by special train to Rhyl, where five hours will be spent, the committee having made special arrangements for char-a-banc excursions in the district.

Mr. George Newbury. For political and public services.

THE NEW PEERS.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks, who celebrated his 64th birthday last Sunday, has sat in the House of Commons continuously, except for a brief interval, since 1908. He first entered the House of Commons 21 years ago by beating Mr. Winston Churchill, then a Liberal, at a by-election in North-West Manchester. Sir William has held the offices of Parliamentary Secretary, Overseas Trade Department, October, 1922; Postmaster-General, February, 1923; Financial Secretary to the Treasury, May, 1923; Minister of Health, August, 1923, to January, 1924, and Secretary of State for Home Affairs, November, 1924, to June, 1929.

Viscount Peel succeeded Lord Birkenhead as Secretary of State for India last October, having previously been First Commissioner of Works from the formation of Mr. Baldwin's last Administration. He had had previous experience of the Indian Secretaryship during the short Conservative Ministry which followed the general election of 1922. The eldest son of Speaker Peel, the first Viscount, and a grandson of the famous Sir Robert Peel, he represented the Southern Division of Manchester in the House of Commons from 1900 to 1906, and was the member for Taunton from 1909 to 1912.

Sir Hamar Greenwood was Chief Secretary for Ireland in the stormy days immediately preceding the negotiation of the Irish Treaty, when he was called upon almost daily to defend the "Black and Tans" in the House of Commons. In the last Parliament he sat as a Constitutionalist for East Walthamstow. His human sympathy was illustrated a few weeks ago, when, learning that a working man had been charged with stealing a bicycle on which to ride to work, he presented the man with a bicycle.

Sir Gilbert Wills, Chairman of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain, Limited, belongs to a famous family, several members of which have been awarded Baronetcies. The bestowal of a Barony upon Sir Gilbert recalls the fact that a kinsman, the late Sir William Wills, who received a Baronetcy in 1892, was raised to the peerage later as Lord Winterstoke, a Barony which became extinct on his death in 1911. Sir Gilbert Wills sat in the House of Commons as a Unionist for ten years, representing Taunton from 1912 to 1918 and Weston-super-Mare from 1918 to 1922.

Sir George Lawson-Johnston, who is Chairman of the Revenue Committee of King Edward's Hospital Fund, acted as one of the Hon. Secretaries of the Thankoffering Fund. He was closely associated with the "Audax" mystery, and cleverly conducted the then unknown benefactor to York House, where he was received by the Prince of Wales. Sir George is an authority on hospital administration, and is Chairman of the Executive Committee, British Charities' Association. He holds several important directorships, including the Chairmanship of Bovril Limited.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

KERRY FRAUD CHARGE.

JURY DISAGREE.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

The trial was continued in which Maurice O'Connor, merchant, was indicted for having on March 27, 1927, maliciously set fire to his drapery premises, known as "The Corner House," Henry street, Kenmare, with intent to defraud the Phoenix Insurance Company and the Hibernian Insurance Company.

Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Finlay (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

Mr. Joseph K. O'Connor, K.C., and Mr. Joseph Reidy (instructed by Mr. Timothy O'Shea) appeared for the accused man.

The case for the prosecution was that on the night in question when the fire broke out at "The Corner House" the accused man was the last person seen to leave the premises, and that he showed little desire or effort to save his property, which was completely destroyed, and that his claim against the insurance companies was fraudulent.

Mrs. Kathleen O'Connor, wife of the accused man, said that on the night of the fire her husband returned home about 10.30 p.m. He went to bed shortly afterwards. A few hours later she heard shouts in the street. Her husband got up and went to the window. She heard someone in the street say: "The 'Corner House' is on fire; throw me down the key quickly." Her husband threw down the key.

In reply to Mr. O'Connor, witness said that when her husband went to the window he was attired in his nightclothes and not in a brown suit, as had been suggested.

ACCUSED MAN'S EVIDENCE.

Maurice O'Connor, the accused man, giving evidence, said that on the night in question he left the shop about 7.30 p.m. He left the key in the diningroom of his own house. He went out, and returned home about 10.30 p.m. He had been in bed a few hours when he was aroused by shouts. Someone was calling him loudly. He rushed to the window, and heard the voice of a man he knew telling him that the "Corner House" was on fire and to throw down the key. Witness could not see anyone, as the night was dark and the view from the window was obstructed by a facing. He threw down the key, and was dressed and out of the house inside of four minutes. He tried to get into the shop for his account books, but was driven out by the smoke and flames. He worked with the other people in the street to save his shop, but there was only one bucket to every twenty people, and the river was 150 yards away. It was untrue to say that he made no serious effort to save the premises. He did not give up until he saw that it was hopeless.

AN OVERDRAFT.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lavery, the witness gave particulars regarding his insurance policies and his stock and trade transactions. He admitted that he had been working for some years on a bank overdraft. In 1926 his overdraft was £1,500. He owed trade creditors about £2,000.

Addressing the jury on behalf of the accused man, Mr. Reidy said that there was not one piece of direct evidence in the case which would convict any person of a crime. Reviewing the facts, he said that the jury would have to come to the conclusion from Gaine's evidence that this witness was not an impartial one. They had dragged from him, Gaine, the previous day, an admission that before he went to O'Connor's house to give the alarm he called at two other houses. This repudiated the suggestion that he had been kept waiting twenty minutes before O'Connor opened his door. Counsel ridiculed the suggestion that the accused man had taken the house in 1923 in order to plot elaborately for a burning in 1927. The fact that a man had an overdraft at the bank did not imply financial difficulties, nor was it a sign of insolvency. On the contrary, it was a sign of solvency, because a concern would not be granted an overdraft if it were not solvent.

QUESTION OF THE ACCIDENT.

Mr. Finlay, for the prosecution, said that the possibility of an accident was completely negatived by the evidence. No one had seen the accused man put the match to the place and start the fire; but the whole chain of circumstances pointed to his guilt. He had made a grossly exaggerated claim against the Insurance Companies.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne, charging the jury, said that there were circumstances of grave suspicion in this case, and for that reason he felt bound to warn them against acting on these suspicions. They must act upon proofs.

The judge then reviewed the evidence.

After an absence of ninety minutes the jury returned, and the foreman announced that agreement was impossible.

The jury was discharged, and the accused man was allowed out on bail.

FIRE IN REPAIR DEPOT.

OMNIBUS COMPANY'S LOSS.

BETWEEN £10,000 AND £11,000 INVOLVED.

Damage amounting to between £10,000 and £11,000 was done yesterday afternoon when a fire broke out in the Irish Omnibus Company's auxiliary repair dépôt in Dominick street, Dublin.

In the shed, which was about 200 feet long by 90 feet broad, were six omnibuses and a private car, as well as a number of spare parts, wheels and tyres, all of which were destroyed.

Only the walls of the shed remain. The roof was of timber, covered with pitch, and there was a quantity of highly inflammable material in the building.

It is a coincidence that the fire should occur just when a deal for the sale of the concern had been completed. Only on the previous day the shareholders of the Irish Omnibus Company held a meeting at which they ratified the sale. As has been announced already, a new company has been formed, and will take over control on Monday next, when, it is understood, the directors of the Irish Omnibus Company will hand in their resignations.

BOARD MEETING HEARS NEWS.

The directors were holding a board meeting in the offices of the Irish Omnibus Company in Aston's quay yesterday afternoon when they received news of the fire. They left for Dominick street immediately, where they did all in their power to help the Fire Brigade and police in their work. They remained on the spot until the fire had been extinguished, little over an hour after the Brigade was called out.

Shortly after three o'clock the alarm was given. Three sections of the Fire Brigade—from Tara street, Thomas street, and Dorset street—were sent out, and the fire was attacked both from the front and from the rear in Mountjoy street, three lines of hose being used. The building was already doomed, but the Brigade had the outbreak under control within twenty minutes.

Adjoining the ruins is a tenement house on one side, and on the other side stands a private dwelling-house, in which live two sisters of the name of Hickey. This house particularly was in danger while the fire was at its height, and its occupants were obliged to leave it and seek shelter from neighbours. As it was, however, the firemen were able to cope with the situation, and the only damage done to the house was an extensive crack in the plaster of the outer wall, which was caused by the heat.

The wall of a building at the back of the repair shed, used by Messrs. W. H. Lamb and Company, was also damaged by the heat, while some cases in the premises were damaged by water.

The tenement house was unaffected. Some of the tenants left it for safety's sake, but the majority remained in their rooms unperturbed.

EXPLOSIONS OF PETROL TINS.

A series of explosions that occurred as petrol tins caught fire quickly attracted large numbers of sightseers, and when the Fire Brigade arrived, the police, who were under Inspector O'Neill, of the "D" Division, had difficulty in keeping back the crowd.

The building was then burning from end to end. The roof had fallen in, and beams were falling everywhere, as the firemen got to work amid a cloud of smoke. Finding it impossible to save the building, the firemen devoted their efforts towards preventing an extension of the fire to the adjoining buildings, in which, as stated, they were successful. Lieutenant Connolly, of Tara street, was in charge of the operations.

The fire occurred in peculiar circumstances. It appears that one of the workmen—Daniel Dalton, of 10 Vincent street, Goldenbridge—was using a blow-lamp near the paint shop, the side of which was covered with tarpaulins. According to one account of the affair a sudden gust carried the flame to the tarpaulins, which were immediately set on fire. The paint shop was in a corner of the shed at the Dominick street end. In a very short time the fire had spread to he farther end and the six omnibuses in the shed were completely destroyed, and also a car which belonged to a foreman, who had gone out to have his lunch.

Dalton was slightly burned about the wrist, and has no clear idea of what happened. He stated that he was standing near one of the cars, holding a blow-lamp, when suddenly he became aware of a flame running along the floor. He let go the lamp, and gave the alarm.

There were about thirty workmen in the shed at the time. The six fire extinguishers, which had been kept there in case of emergency, were immediately brought into use, but it was a hopeless task, and eventually the men had to run out of the building for safety, leaving their coats and caps, as well as the tools, behind.

In the building was an underground petrol tank which contained 900 gallons. It alone was undamaged by the fire. Our representative was informed by the directors of the Irish Omnibus Company that at one time there was a doubt as to its safety, but yesterday's test proved it to be quite fire-proof.

Owing to the heat a gas main situated in the shed was damaged, with the result that the gas escaped and became ignited. The gas was quickly turned off, however. A telephone wire in the street was burned down.

FINE WORK BY THE FIRE BRIGADE.

The company has over 150 'buses running in the Free State, with an extensive garage in Fairview, and the service will not be affected in any way by the loss of the 'buses destroyed by the fire. The directors told our reporter that they appreciate very much the work of the Fire Brigade, and also of the workmen engaged in the Dominick street dépôt.

RAILWAY CHARGES.

RATES FOR CARRIAGE OF MATCHES.

At the resumed sitting of the Railway Tribunal in the City Hall, Dublin, yesterday, Messrs. Maguire and Paterson, match manufacturers, lodged an objection to the proposal of the railway company to increase charges of carriage.

Mr. Patrick Pentony, a representative of Messrs. Maguire and Paterson, in evidence, said that his firm objected strongly to the proposed minimum rate of 4s., on the grounds that they were pretty hard pressed with the minimum of 2s. 6d. they were paying at present. The rates in this country were much higher than in England, for instance. The railway company proposed to increase the rates on safety matches by 27 per cent., and, in the case of red or strike-anywhere matches by 53 per cent. Foreign matches coming into Ireland were given the same charges and terms as Messrs. Maguire and Paterson, who were the only manufacturers in Ireland. It was unfair, the witness considered, that the firm in Ireland should be called upon to pay rates that were excessive, as compared with rates in England, which recently showed a decrease of 25 per cent. on safety matches. Rates in Ireland at present were 100 per cent. over pre-war level, and now the company proposed to increase the rates by 53 per cent. The bulk of the firm's trade was in the "strike-anywhere" matches, and the witness added that they had five times the sale of the safety matches.

Chairman—Are you all one combine?—No, my lord.

There is some "combine" for British matches?—We are an independent firm, trading only in Ireland, with no connection with the other firms.

The witness added that the bulk of the matches imported were safety matches, and so they were entitled to the low rate on the railways.

Mr. Hanrahan said the company would be prepared to reduce the 4s. minimum to 2s. 6d. for matches, not safety, provided it did not prejudice other items.

This was agreed to by the tribunal, when they adjourned until Monday next.

WESTERN MURDER CHARGE.

AN IRISH AMERICAN'S DEATH.

YOUNG MAN SENT FOR TRIAL.

From 3 o'clock on Thursday evening until 11 o'clock at night, District Justice J. P. Kenny sat at the Courthouse, Carrick-on-Shannon hearing the evidence of sixteen witnesses concerning the death of an Irish-American named Myles Connolly, aged [illegible], of Tullytawn, County Roscommon, who, as a result of an alleged assault on 17th inst. at Ballyfarnon, died in the Roscommon County Hospital on Tuesday last.

At the District Court in Carrick-on-Shannon last week a well-to-do young farmer named John James Langan, of Aghoo, Kilmastranny, Ballyfarnon, was charged with causing grievous bodily harm to the old man, but when brought before the special court on Thursday evening the State preferred the capital charge against him.

Connolly is stated to have served in the British Army in early life, going to America afterwards. He returned to Ireland a short time before his death took place.

Mr. P. Neilan, State Solicitor, Roscommon, conducted the prosecution, and Mr. C. E. Callan, solicitor, Boyle, defended.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE.

Dr. J. F. Roden, Keadue, who was called to attend the deceased, stated that he found Connolly in great pain. He could do nothing for the man, as he was ruptured, and he advised his immediate removal to hospital. It took considerable violence to cause the injuries, which were caused by a blow, and they were very recent. Connolly told him that the cause of his trouble was that he was kicked. The witness asked him if he was robbed, and he replied "No," and from his shirt pocket he took £39, which he handed to his sister-in-law.

Terence Connolly, the deceased man's brother, stated that Myles only returned a few days previous to the affair from the United States. He left the house in good health on the 17th inst. at 11 o'clock, and when he returned that night between 11 and 12 he began to complain of pain. The witness went for Dr. Rodden, who had him removed to hospital.

PUBLIC-HOUSE SCENE.

John McHugh, publican, Ballyfarnon, said that Myles Connolly, during the fair on the 17th inst., called to his house for a drink, and returned again about 9.15 p.m. Shortly afterwards he saw him speaking in the shop to the accused John Langan. Their conversation became unfriendly, and Connolly struck Langan a blow in the mouth. The witness separated them. A boy named Jim Clarke held Langan, and the witness put Connolly out of the shop. After Connolly had gone Langan had an altercation with a man named Simon, and when the witness returned Simon was on the ground. The witness lifted Simon and put him out, and Langan said that that was the man he wanted to get at. Langan did not follow Connolly, and no one kept him back. Connolly returned, but the witness stopped him from entering the shop as Langan was present. Langan left at five minutes to ten with John Cavanagh. The only blow that he saw struck was the one that Connolly gave the prisoner, but other blows could have been struck unknown to him.

To Mr. Callan—He could not see any justification for Connolly striking Langan, who was a quiet man.

A FALL ON A BARREL.

Joseph Clarke, motor driver, said that when Connolly struck Langan a box in the face Langan replied with a stroke and a shove, and Myles Connolly fell on a half barrel. The witness held Langan, and while he was holding him he gave Connolly a few light kicks behind. Connolly appeared to have drink taken.

To Mr. Callan—The kicks given hardly caused the injuries that the doctor described.

Arthur Klein, who also gave evidence, said, in reply to Mr. Callan, that only one kick was given, and after Connolly was struck he shuddered.

ROADSIDE QUARREL.

John Cavanagh said that in M'Hugh's shop, after Connolly and Langan struck each other, Langan said that he would give Connolly a kick of his boot if he thought it worth while. He left the town with Langan. At Alderford Gate they caught up with old Myles Connolly. John Langan, the accused, pushed him and knocked him down. After he knocked Connolly he asked him would he apologise for the dirty language that he used in Ballyfarnon. He did not see the old man give any provocation to Langan to knock him. There was not one of the crowd gave a hand to the old man to lift him.

Mr. Kenny—Are you proud of that? You seem to be from the way that you answered it.

To Mr. Callan—I did not see Langan kick Connolly.

Francis Lenaghan said that he saw Langan knock Connolly at Alderford gates. He told him that if he interfered with him it would be worse for him, as the witness said he would not see the old man abused. Langan replied—"I would knock hell out of you, anyway." Langan appeared excited. Tom Connington passed, and he called him, as he thought that Langan, who was in a rage, would attack him. Langan went to make off, but Connington struck at him, and gave him a good "bleaching." When the witness called Connington Connolly was on the ground and alone, and the prisoner standing over him.

WITNESS COMPLIMENTED.

Thomas Connington said that when he got to Alderford Lodge Myles Connolly was on the ground on his back. Frank Lenaghan called to him, and when he came back a man named McKenna and Cavanagh were on the footpath, and Langan was standing over. Connolly, Langan and the other two men went to make away, but the witness told them to stand their ground. He asked who hit Connolly, and Lenaghan pointed to the prisoner, saying, "This is the man." The witness said that it was cowardly to hit the old man, and got into grips with Langan. After having a tussle for five or seven minutes the witness knocked Langan down.

Several other witnesses were examined.

Mr. Kenny returned the accused for trial, in custody, to the Central Criminal Court at Dublin.

An application for bail was refused.

DUBLIN PARTNERSHIP ACTION.

AN APPEAL DISMISSED.

The plaintiff in the case of Sante Staffieri, of 30 Main street, Donnybrook, against Frederick R. G. Kerwick, of 67 Middle Abbey street, Dublin, appealed from an order made by Mr. Justice Johnston on further consideration of the Examiner's certificate, dated April 17 last, extending the time for liberty to vary the certificate. The grounds of the appeal were that Mr. Justice Johnston was wrong in making the order, as it was contrary to the relative rules of court.

The proceedings, it appeared, arose in connection with a partnership business carried on by the parties in the sale of Italian wines in Middle Abbey street, Dublin, the firm being called the Italo-Irish Wine Company. The partnership was wound up at the end of the first year, when Mr. Staffieri brought an action against Mr. Kerwick, which was dismissed. In the action the defendant, Mr. Kerwick, counter-claimed for an order for the taking of partnership accounts between the parties, which was granted by Mr. Justice Johnston.

After the accounts had been taken, the Examiner (Mr. Healy) made up his certificate, and it was on the further consideration of that certificate that the order made by Mr. Justice Johnston, extending the time to vary the certificate, was now appealed from.

Mr. Lynn (instructed by Messrs. Collins and Son) appeared for the appellant and plaintiff; and Mr. Hector Hughes, K.C., and Mr. William Black (instructed by Mr. J. W. Lane) for the respondent and defendant.

At the conclusion of the hearing,

The Court was unanimously of opinion that, on the facts, a complete "special circumstance" existed within the meaning of Rule 75 of Order 5, and dismissed the appeal.

The offices of the Liverpool Typographical Society, Hardman Hall, Liverpool, were raided during Thursday night by burglars, who forced open a safe and stole £300 in notes and silver.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

WINTON'S THIRD SUCCESS.

NARROW VICTORY OF MARBLE.

GOLDEN COMBINE STARTS WELL.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
SANDOWN, Friday.

Winton did not race as a two-year-old, and Mr. Tattersall is reaping the reward this season. By winning the Sandringham Foal Plate at Sandown yesterday the colt scored his third success of the season, and by the way he accomplished his task I hope to see him win more races. He was carrying top weight, but backers made him their choice.

Moyresque, from the same stable, but in different ownership, set a good gallop and was coming back when Shovelstrode closed with him two furlongs out. Jones had Winton in a good position, and, challenging at the distance, put paid to the opposition in a few strides. Winton is leased by Mr. Tattersall from Mr. Deane for his racing career, and is by Lord Astor's stallion, Craigan-Eran, who is the sire of Cragadour.

ARGUIDE'S STRONG FINISH.

The Wellington Handicap was won by Lord Lonsdale's Marble, who was only a short head better than Arguide. Lady Hillingdon's colt put in some tremendous work in the last hundred yards, and in another stride or so would have won.

Tremolino ran a good race, while others I saw were Four Kings and Tangira. Trochee and Water Rose ran very fast, but Favourita's chance was destroyed at the starter's end. Four Kings has recently changed hands, and his new owner is H.H. Maharajah of Kolhapur. Marble is a grey colt by Tetratema.

Dazzler has turned over a new leaf and ran very gamely to win the Claremont Handicap after Lulworth Cove had settled Noroc. Audax made the running, and although Flying Arab tried to improve his position, his efforts were of no avail.

The majority of the two-year-olds in the Rookery Maiden Plate were backward, but Mr. Farquharson's Land Girl colt had benefited by his previous race and beat the Portree filly by a head. The second is a nice filly, who is by Beresford, and might have been a trifle unlucky to lose.

FIRST RACE AND WIN.

Golden Combine was making his début in the Hampton Selling Plate, when the Marion West filly was backed against the field. Half-way through the race Wootton's unnamed filly appeared to have the race won, but Burns showed his whip to Golden Combine. This had the desired effect, as this good-looking plater shot to the front and went on to win very easily. He is trained by B. Carslake, and at the subsequent auction found a new owner in Mr. Misa at 860 guineas.

Grotesque was a good horse last year, but the difficulty is to train him on account of his legs. The animals he was meeting in the Wadham Selling Plate were very moderate, and had it been a handicap he would have been conceding weight all round. After appearing to be shut in, J. Marshall, who won the Derby on Trigo, brought him round to the outside and won comfortably.

SOME SELECTIONS.

Old Orkney has a 14lb. penalty to carry in the June Rose Handicap at Sandown this afternoon for his success in the Ascot Stakes. Brown Jack was a head behind him, and, being brought out later in the week, Brown Jack won the Alexandra Stakes. West Wicklow is improving, and the way Mittagong ran at Ascot suggests that he will win a good handicap. Mara's performance in the Newbury Cup was a good one, and the race should have done her good, though I fancy the distance to-day will be quite far enough for her. Troubadour and La Sologne do not appeal, and, perhaps, Old Orkney may be the danger to MARA.

Some good two-year-olds frequently are to be found in the British Dominion Plate, but this year nothing of note is running. HAKEM may win, but he is not much. F. Darling relies on Grace Dalrymple, who made her début in the Queen Mary Stakes at Ascot, in preference to Silver Cloud and Silver Gown. Mr. Singers' Pharos—Becka filly makes her first appearance, and rumour says that she can gallop.

AROOSTOOK has won three times, and should add the Coombe Plate to his other successes.

The Old Newton Cup at Haydock may be won by Gipsy King, Appledore, or Chatsworth. Gipsy King has been placed twice, and following his good race at Newbury he finished third to Siegfried at Ascot. I have a preference for APPLEDORE, who is certainly one to follow whatever may be his fate here.

LIMERICK JUNCTION.

TWO DEAD-HEATS.

ANOTHER DOUBLE FOR MR. F. CLARKE.

There was plenty of excitement about the racing at Limerick Junction yesterday, for as well as a generally interesting afternoon's sport, the crowd were treated to the exceptional happening of witnessing two dead-heats. The two races were of a totally different character, for in the first instance it was a case of the two horses concerned being of about equal merit at the weights at which they were offered, whereas in the other case neither of the dead-heaters would have had anything to say to the finish had it not been for the misfortunes of the two other horses in the race.

As was only to be expected with the going in its present hard condition, fields for the majority of the races were on the small side, and there were only three runners for the Sologhead Handicap Hurdle. One of these, Sheevra Beg, was early out of the fray, and eventually came to grief half a mile from home. Then we were treated to a great set-to between the top weight, Star Eireann, and Court Picture. Canty was seen to his best advantage on the latter, but he had nothing in hand of young Denis Doyle on Star Eireann, and in a fair and square finish the pair ran home locked together. Neither owner felt disposed to subject his horse to another bout on the hard ground, so a division was agreed to.

The second of the dead-heats came at the end of the day, and, as stated, was the outcome of a very different class of race. That usually safe conveyance, Southern Prince, to the consternation of his supporters, never rose at the second fence, and came a cropper, and thenceforward Bachelor's Bauble, the mount of Mr. J. H. de Bromhead, held a commanding lead until within thirty yards or so of the winning post, when he swung away in an attempt to reach the gate to the paddock. Despite the efforts of his rider he could not be induced to go on past the judge's box, and in the meantime the other two runners, Hoe and Tan Girl, ran home in such close company that the judge was unable to separate them. A division was also agreed to in this instance.

These two unusual incidents apart, there was some very interesting racing, and Mr. Fred Clarke, the young trainer who has met with such success this season, put another double event to his credit, his winners being the two-years-old Gay Soul and the steeplechaser Sirreus. Gay Soul, who was one of the outsiders of the party of seven runners for the Flying Plate, held command of the situation after three furlongs had been covered, and, though her win was readily achieved, she failed to fetch a bid at the ensuing auction. Sirreus had an almost equally easy triumph in the Three Miles Steeplechase, in which Acting Master was pulled up passing the stands the second time round, his rider, it appears, having lost an iron.

Joe Canty rode a judicious race on Another Craft in the Directors' Plate, adopting the policy of waiting in front, and this just about enabled him to get the better of Supina in the closing stages. Shanford, a very genuine mare, registered her fifth win out of seven races since May by easily accounting for Orbell and Dream More in the Ballykisteen Plate. The catering at the meeting is being done by Messrs. Mills, Ltd., Dublin. Details:—

YACHTING.

THE CLYDE FORTNIGHT.

WIN FOR WHITE HEATHER.

AN IRISH SUCCESS.

The Regatta of the Royal Largs Yacht Club at Largs yesterday provided a bright opening for the Clyde fortnight. There was a northerly breeze of fair sailing strength, and about forty yachts took part in the eight races on the programme. Owing to the death of Sir Mortimer Singer, Astra was absent from the class for yachts exceeding twenty-one metres, and she is not expected to compete at any of the Clyde regattas, there were thus four starters, and White Heather was the winner by over 20 minutes from Shamrock, who secured second prize. The course sailed was 41 miles.

When in drydock at Greenock this week Shamrock had a bit taken off her keel, and this had the effect of bringing down her rating to that of White Heather. The handicaps were as follows:—Lulworth (Mr. A. A. Paton), scr.; White Heather (Lord Waring), 1 min. 22 secs.; Shamrock (Sir Thomas Lipton), 1 min. 22 secs.; Cambria (Lord Camrose), 5 mins. Shamrock was racing for the first time with her full suit of new sails of Egyptian cotton. The race started at 11 o'clock, the two leaders at the finish were timed:—

	H.	M.	S.
*White Heather (winner)	5	48	0
Shamrock (second prize)	6	8	48

The others were a long way astern.

In the handicap for yachts over fifteen tons and not over fifty tons, the starters were the Irish yawls, Lafone and Rose, the Irish cutter, Lady Edith, and the Clyde yawl, Pelazia. Lafone was at scratch, and over the 26 miles course allowed Pelazia and Lady Edith each four mins. twenty secs., and Rose twelve mins. eight secs. Lady Edith led throughout and won without calling upon her handicap. She was chased home by Lafone, which took second prize.

The race for the 8-metres class was also over a 26 miles course, and Mr. W. F. Robertson's Caryl, the challenger for the Seawanhaka Cup, won by the wide margin of 20 mins. 35 secs. from Cluaran, Coila IV. securing third prize.

HOWTH REGATTA—TO-DAY.

For once in a way there seems to be no reason for anxiety over the weather of the week-end, and that Howth Regatta will enjoy ideal conditions this afternoon is reasonably certain at the time of writing. The wind continues to hold to the east, there is always an afternoon breeze, and as everybody is aware the flood of sunshine of late has been exceptional for our climate.

The weather of late has been perfect, in fact, for sport on the water, and Howth should reap the benefit to-day. It will be the first of coast regattas proper, the recent fixture at Kingstown being on a higher plane, it being a Y.R.A. regatta.

The preparatory guns will be fired as follows:—2.55 p.m., 25-Footers; 3.10 p.m., 21-Footers; 3.25 p.m., Small Cruisers; 3.40 p.m., 17-Footers (Sutton Challenge Cup); 4.0 p.m., Clontarf Boats; 4.10 p.m., Seapoint Dinghies.

There is a convenient tide this afternoon, viz., high water at 5.21 p.m.

The first ladies' race for Seapoint Dinghies was very nearly a drift rather than a race on Thursday evening, and only one boat, Cormorant, sailed by Miss Wright, lasted out the two rounds of the port (harbour) course and finished alone, but a winner. The others, viz., Kittiwake (Mrs. Douglas), Seamew (Miss Odbert), Curlew (Miss Collins), and Ibis (Miss Cotter) gave up. So light was the easterly air that the winner took nearly 2¼ hours to sail the two rounds.

THE SENIOR LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP.

TRINITY'S GOOD START AGAINST LEINSTER.

The match between Leinster and Dublin University, which commenced at Rathmines yesterday, is invested with much interest, as the winners will head their division of the Senior League and qualify to meet either Pembroke or Phœnix for the championship. The sides turned out at full strength, Trinity having the assistance of their captain, P. A. Thornton, who had been out of the team for some weeks, owing to illness.

The University, who had first use of a splendid wicket, batted two and a half hours for 142 for 3 wickets.

C. M. Lloyd and A. D. Barber gave the side a good start, and, despite bowling changes, put on 55 before Barber was bowled by Ingram for a well-played 29. Loughrey assisted Lloyd to bring the score to 90, ere Reddy got through his defence. McVeagh gave little trouble; but on T. H. Dixon joining Lloyd at 95 another good stand was made, and the pair were together at the close. Dixon hit briskly for 41 out of 47 put on by the partnership.

A resumption will be made to-day at 2.30.

ESSEX V. HAMPSHIRE.

Thanks to a remarkable innings by Philip Mead Hampshire were able to draw the match with Essex at Leyton yesterday. Hampshire began the day 261 behind, with three wickets down in the second innings, but the pitch gave the Essex bowlers no assistance. The fourth wicket partnership yielded 135. Brown would not hit, no matter how he was tempted, and the nature of his innings can be judged by the fact that he made but 58 in three hours and forty minutes, in which time Mead got to his hundred. Batting all day Mead made a most satisfactory return to the Hampshire team. Score:—

Hampshire—208 and 308 (Mead not out 166, Brown 58) for 5 wickets.

GOLF.

THE AMERICAN OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP.

SARAZEN AND ESPINOSA LEADING.

He was none too steady during the first nine holes, for which he required 41.

Walter Hagen failed to retrieve his position after his moderate 76 in the first round. He took 81, and his total of 157 jeopardised his chances. Al Espinosa and Gene Sarazen, who finished on the heels of "Bobby" Jones on Thursday, made a bid to displace the famous amateur. Espinosa was in great form early in the round. He negotiated a 40-feet putt at the first hole, and reached the turn in 35. Homeward, however, he fell away, and returned 72 for a total of 142.

Sarazen gained a stroke on Espinosa by scoring 71, and was level with the Glencoe professional at 142.

White was distinctly off colour, and he required 86 for his second round and a total of 158. He was in trouble all the way homeward, and had two 6's, five 5's and two 4's. His score for the second nine was 45. Densmore Schute returned a second round of 71, and his 144 placed him among the leaders.

Leading second rounds and totals:—Gene Sarazen (Flushing), 71—142; Al Espinosa (Glencoe), 72—142; D. Schute (Worthington), 71—144; Mr. R. T. Jones (Atalanta), 75—144; J. Sabol (White Plains), 78—154; G. Smith (Moortown), 77—154; Dan Williams (Westfield), 76—154; Jim Barnes (unattached), 78—156; Joe Kirkwood (unattached), 82—157; Walter Hagen (New York), 81—157; Johnny Golden (Paterson), 79—158.

"Bobby" Jones, who led the field with 69 on Thursday, was followed by a big "gallery," although a rain storm broke over the course when the champion began.

Craig Wood (Bloomfield), 71—150; W. Cox (Brooklyn), 76—150; H. Ciuci (Stratford), 74—152; Willie Hunter (Montebello), 77—153; J. Rogers (Denver), 75—154; Mr. J. Goodman (Lakewood), 80—155; A. H. Andrews (Davenport), 79—155.

The Prince of Wales was defeated in the annual tournament of White's Club by Captain Guy Westmacott. The Prince played from the 16 handicap mark and his opponent off 12, and the latter won by 3 and 2. The match was played at Sunningdale.

THE PHARMACISTS AT CLONTARF.

ROWING.

THE TRINITY CREWS AT HENLEY.

IMPROVING AT EVERY STROKE.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

HENLEY, Friday Night.

The Dublin University eight and four are improving at every stroke.

On Thursday evening the four rowed from the mile post, preceded by the Sidney Sussex and Pembroke College fours. The Cambridge crews started ahead, but Dublin University hung on, and the gap never widened.

Later the eight had a long outing, and raced the last half-mile against Jesus College, whom they beat half a length, which was an excellent performance.

Yesterday morning the full Dublin eight were out, Dixon having travelled from Dublin overnight. Incidentally, the Dublin crew averages 12st., and Dixon, being 14st. 9lb., will be the heaviest man rowing at Henley, the next heaviest being the Leander 6, Collins, the Cambridge Blue, who scales 14st. 5lb.

Of the scullers Lee, Wright and Guest are easily the best. Barry is coaching Wright, Jack Arlett Lee, and Harry Arlett Guest.

First Trinity, Cambridge, is going well, but it has not been decided whether they will enter for the Grand or for the Ladies'.

It is almost certain that London and Leander will be in the final of the Grand, if they do not meet earlier. Argonauts (Canada) are improving, and may be dangerous.

Of the Thames Cup crews, Brown and Nicholls' School (America) are fast, but their style is too tiring for the gruelling Henley course. The Columbia University eight are beautifully together, and, owing to their cohesion, may be capable of lasting the course at high speed.

GAELIC GAMES.

THE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

TO-MORROW'S GAMES.

(BY PAT'O.)

Approaching the final stages, the Provincial Championships are interesting. Ulster has a game of great attraction at Belturbet to-morrow, where Cavan and Armagh meet. Both were in Croke Park finals of recent years. Armagh won the junior, and Cavan's seniors lost to Kildare last year in a game which the Ulster men might have won. Recently Armagh and Cavan have played well across the border, and the right to meet Monaghan in the final will be strenuously fought for. With Smith again assisting Cavan, I like their chances against a fast team of growing strength.

Dublin and Leix meet at Athy. Leix have improved steadily, and may find their best form to-morrow. The Millar and Delaney group are a force, and Dublin's weakness under the non-resident rule may be decisive. Three Kickham's men—Bates, O'Shea and Price—will be with Leix. Dublin will find the Garda and O'Tooles their best strength, but the introduction of Whitty and Higgins, of U.C.D., suggests a good finish. Should Leix produce their best football they may pass to the final round.

Limerick and Waterford meet in the Munster Hurling semi-final at Limerick. The new grounds on the Ennis road should be well filled. The man in the street has not marked Waterford's advance in hurling, yet I shall be very much mistaken should Limerick win easily to-morrow. This may prove the best match in the championship. Waterford's home form is right good, and victories over the Guards and the Faughs suggest strength. Limerick's experience should bring them through, but their followers will have many anxious moments.

FIXTURES.

Athy—Dublin v. Leix (Leinster Football Championship Semi-final). Carlow v. Leix (Junior).
Limerick—Limerick v. Waterford (Munster Hurling Semi-final, Senior); same counties (Junior Football).
Belturbet—Cavan v. Armagh (Ulster Senior Football Championship Semi-final).
Omagh—Donegal v. Tyrone (Junior Hurling Semi-final).
Riverstown—Blackrock v. Carrigtwohill (Cork Senior Hurling Championship).

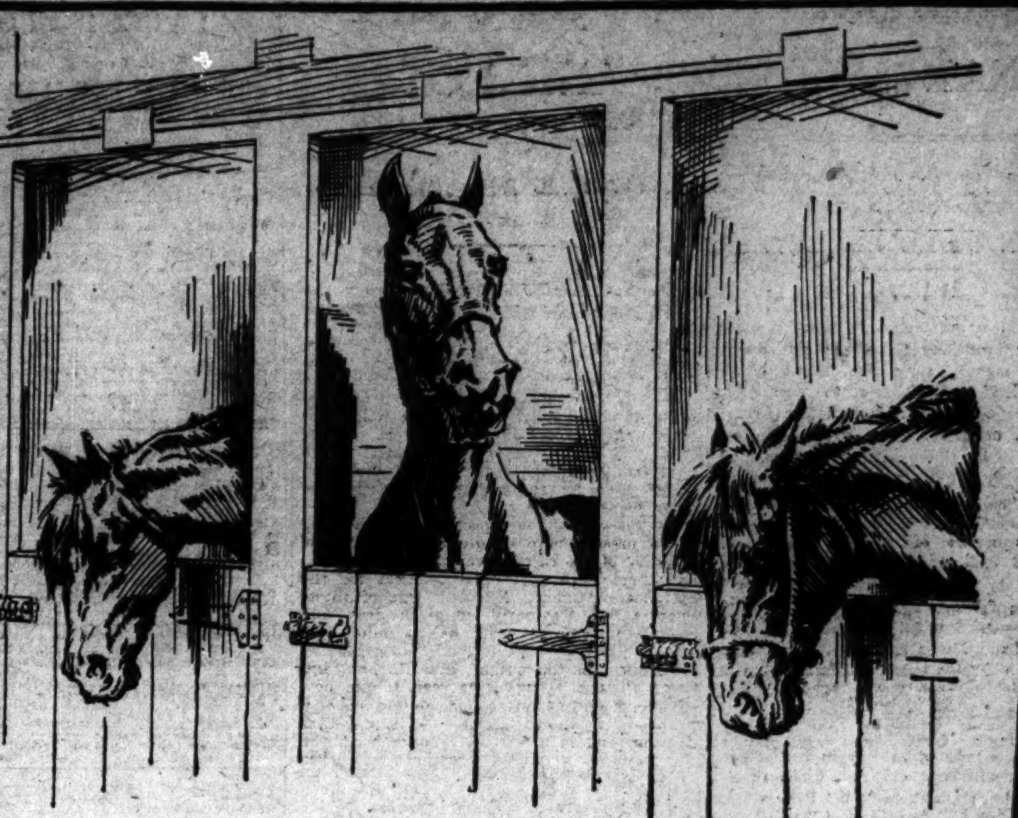
NATIONAL ATHLETIC CHAMPIONSHIPS.

The National Athletic and Cycling Association has been distinctly fortunate in securing such a representative entry for its Championship Meeting, which will open to-day at Croke Park and be continued to-morrow.

The entries are somewhat larger than last year, and "class" is also better represented, while the appearance on the track of athletes from the Yorks. and Lancs. Regiment champions of the Army, who are stationed at Derry, will invest the events in which they compete with exceptional interest.

Among those who have entered are:—Messrs. D. J. Cussen, Hogan, Gummer (South London H.), Nel, Capetown University Hurdles champion, now at Dublin University; the schools and colleges champion, Burke, of Belvedere College; Eustace, Wallis, McNeice, Phelan, Moore (University College), Guards Gregan and McAlinden, S. Lavan, Dickson (Belfast), Magan, Price, Feeney, Groarke, Kinsella (National Army), Clarke, Nolan, Shanahan, O'Connor, Moroney, Anglim, C. O'Callaghan, Dr. O'Callaghan, Bermingham, and Britton.

To-day's programme embraces the 100 Yards, High Jump, 440 Yards, Discus, One Mile, Hop, Step, and Jump, 56lbs. and Shot, and the remaining events will be decided to-morrow. The starting time each day is 3 o'clock.



SHELL — THE THOROUGHBRED

In choosing power—whether in horseflesh or petrol—pick the thoroughbred. No lesser stock can respond so grandly to every call for speed, or give you such pride of motion, for high efficiency is a noble and a satisfying thing. That is why a riding man's eye picks out the thoroughbred in any stable and motorists make instinctively for the Shell pump at every filling station.

THE DIFFERENCE—Shell petrol is blended from sources some of which are exclusive. The essentials—anti-knocking, chemical cleanliness, easy starting and rapid acceleration—are so balanced in Shell that none is absent and none developed at the expense of another.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN STILL UNCERTAIN.

RAIL ORDINARY GOOD.

The easing or unfavourable trend in prices of leading Securities the other side during the past month, since the result of the general election, continues to exercise a rather depressing effect on investors as well as market operators on this side who are interested. Local Securities, however, have on balance displayed an improving tone and tendency, notably in Banks, Railways, Canal, Trams, Gas and most Manufacturing and Trading concerns of repute, despite the paucity of dealing in most cases and the absence of day-to-day official closing prices to guide those who are, or would like to become, interested. Government National Loans were firm and Land Bonds hardened, but British and Indian Funds were realised again at lower prices. Among Banks, Nationals were again dull and lower; others were steady, but mainly idle. The Guinness market remains dull, and the price gave way in the absence of support, although export returns remain steady. Dublin Distillers "A" Shares were still supported for London account. British and Irish Steam Preference, quoting ex the July dividend, closed easy. Marconi 10s. Shares were scarcely altered. There was a lot of solid support offered for Home Railway Ordinary Stocks at advancing prices, and the recovery will be appreciated after the relapse the past few days in Great Southern issues. The general outlook, it is considered, has been much improved by recent events. British-American Tobaccos were weak, and Imperials, after being [illegible], closed without change. Textiles varied a little. Chemicals were freely on sale. Oils were irregular, with Shell Transports dull and lower. Dulcetto Polyphon final dividend is 12½ per cent. actual on the 1s. Ordinary Shares, making, with the 25 per cent. interim last September, a total distribution of 37½ per cent. for period ended 31st March last. Coats eased a trifle, but Spinners were firmer. Bleachers are now quoted ex the 1s. 6d. final dividend.

LONDON IRREGULAR.

GILT-EDGED RALLY.

The volume of business transacted in the London stocks as a whole yesterday failed to show any material expansion, but despite the continued paucity of interest a firmer tendency was apparent in several directions, the Gilt-edged especially reflecting an improvement in sterling as expressed in dollars and marks. The international issues, on the other hand, were not so good, these descriptions displaying an irregular appearance, while Industrials generally were uncertain. For the reason mentioned above, the Gilt-edged section displayed a distinctly firmer trend, and values were marked forward in many directions. Little of interest transpired in Foreign Government stocks, and for the most part the overnight levels were repeated. Home Rails also experienced an idle session, but a steady tone prevailed. Apart from the Buenos Ayres issues, in which there was again a fair volume of business, Colonial and Foreign Rails were neglected.

The Industrial sections as a whole again experienced a comparatively quiet session, and the tone was irregular. Among Talking Machines H.M.V. dropped back further, the old shares being sold, presumably in order that holders may more easily make room for the new shares, which are being offered one for one at £1 each. Textiles remained dull, the passing of the Illingworth Morris Preference dividend exercising a depressing influence. Artsilks also were the turn lower here and there. Motors strengthened in one or two directions, but Leylands went off, disappointment being expressed that the directors are paying only two years' arrears of dividend on the second Preference capital, which still leaves over six years unpaid. Aviation Shares were dullish. Handley-Page, however, proved an exception, the quotation improving on the important aero developments in America, and the fact that the shares are quoted on the New York kerb market. Mines as a whole were quiet and easier inclined, but Kaffirs strengthened here and there.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

According to cabled advices from New York, a further issue of $20,000,000 Forty-year Five per cent. Bonds of the Canadian National Railways was made by a group headed by Dillon Read and Co. The additional bonds are offered at 99⅛.

U.S. £32,000,000 SURPLUS.

Mr. Mellon, Secretary to the U.S. Treasury, estimates the surplus for the present fiscal year at $160,000,000 (£32,000,000).

ASHANTI GOLDFIELDS.

A market slip is being privately circulated containing an exhaustive analysis of the position of the above company. Much of it is highly technical, but the gist of the matter is that there is every prospect of a continuance of satisfactory dividends despite the fact that the company has already distributed £2,175,980 among its shareholders since it was incorporated in 1897. In the last four years the net profits have risen from £121,612 to £163,440, and the total dividend from 37½ to 55 per cent. For the first eight months of the current year the net profits amounted to £128,047, and if this average is maintained the total will be £192,000, representing approximately 75 per cent. on the share capital of £250,000 in 4s. shares. It is not expected that the interim dividend due in August will be altered, but for the whole year the distribution may easily exceed 60 per cent., against last year's figure of 55 per cent. The shares are quoted about 24s., so that on a 60 per cent. dividend basis the yield would be 10 per cent. A favourable point is the strong financial position, the total assets reaching £695,108 against liabilities amounting to £135,931. Further, in a period of four years the ore reserves have risen from 247,600 tons to 549,400 tons, and the average value has slightly increased. Every endeavour apparently is being made to reduce working costs. A director of the Consolidated Goldfields of South Africa has lately joined the board.

BREWERY SHARES IN BELGIUM.

Under the patronage of the Credit General du Congo, a subsidiary of the Banque de Bruxelles, and the collaboration of the European and General Finance Corporation, Ltd., and Belgian breweries, an international holding company of Colonial, Belgian and foreign breweries will shortly be founded, with a capital of 100,000,000 francs.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

STADIER TENDENCY.

HYDROS IN STRONG REQUEST.

Although there was still some hesitation in places, the tone on the whole for Industrial issues yesterday proved steadier. Price movements were again of an irregular nature, but with New York in a buying mood some of the "Anglo-American" descriptions showed to advantage.

The brightest spot among Electricals was provided by Associateds, which, on New York buying, advanced 3s. 6d. to 49s. General Electrics, British Insulated and Henleys all closed firm. The Supply shares moved irregularly.

The feature among Canadian-American issues was the strong demand witnessed for Hydro-Electrics, with buyers still in evidence after hours in the "street," when the price was raised to 44½, an advance of 4½. Brazilian Traction Common further improved ½ to 59⅛, and Shawinigans 1½ to 94½, with British Columbia Power "A" shares wanted at 47½.

International Nickels continued active, though showing no change on balance. Iron and Steel shares generally still seemed undecided.

Motor shares moved in irregular fashion. Thomas Tillings continued in the ascendant, a further 1/16 up at 5 1/16, with some inquiry for Morris Pref. and Rovers. Leylands, however, reacted to 54s. 3d., with Rolls Royce offered at 2⅛.

Among Aviation shares, Handley Page Pref. further improved to 23s. 3d. on the aero developments in America.

Rayon issues remained in uncertain mood, British Celanese Ordinary eventually closing at 1 11/16, while Courtaulds lost the turn at 3 15/16. Nuera Ordinary rallied to 20s., and Snia Viscosa further improved 6d. to 18s. 9d. The passing of the Illingworth Morris Preference dividend and the directors' remarks concerning the difficulties of the textile industry caused hesitation among the shares concerned, and lower values were returned here and there.

Breweries remained out of favour, and Tobaccos showed little variation.

No decided trend was seen among "Record" shares. Gramophones (H.M.V.) opened at 16, dipped to 15 11/16, then rallied to 15 15/16, only to fall back finally to 15⅝, showing a loss of balance of ⅜. Elsewhere Metropoles rallied a trifle to 4s. 1½d., and Vocalions gained the turn at 1⅜.

Stores, Catering and Food Supply shares ruled easier for choice. Harrods were subject to a few more scattered sales at 77s. 3d.; also Harrods (B.A.) Ordinary at 24s. 9d. Aerated Bread dipped at one time to 22s. 9d., eventually finishing with a net loss of 9d. at 23s. 3d.

Cairn Lines eased to 9s. 6d. in the Shipping department, with Cunards dealt in small numbers at 24s. Elder Dempster 5½ per cents. Preferences declined 6d. to 17s. 9d., and the 6 per cent. Preferences 3d. to 14s. 9d.

In the Cement group, British Cement Products came on offer and gave way ⅛ to 2 1/16, while the Deferred shed 1s. to 22s.

In other directions, the Swedish group turned dull again, Kreuger and Toll easing to 35¼, Swedish Match "B" shares to 20⅜, and Elecktrolux to 7⅞. Week-end profit-taking was noticeable in Imperial Chemicals, which reacted 4½d. to 36s. 10½d. British Aluminiums receded to 49s. 6d., while Dunlops lost the turn at 17s.

OIL SHARES FEATURELESS.

In common with most other sections of the Stock Exchange, the Oil Share Market had a firmer appearance during the early hours of yesterday, prices of the leaders and a few of the more speculative favourites moving to higher levels. The volume of business, however, was small in all directions, and initial gains were not held in all cases, final price movements showing irregularity. Amsterdam was a buyer of Royal Dutch at the start, but turned a seller later, while sales of the Eagle issues were encounterd from Paris shortly before the close. Advices from New York in regard to the working of the American Export Association are to the effect that a difference of opinion has arisen on the advisability of increasing the export of petrol. Certain companies, headed by the Standard, are reported to favour an increase. The opposition, headed by the Shell Union, contends that it would be contrary to good business practice to raise prices in the face of increased production and a posible breakdown in the plans for curtailment. There were no really outstanding features of interest in the market yesterday, but having regard to the fact that idle conditions prevailed for the greater part of the afternoon, the tone at the close was satisfactory.

RUBBER SHARES FIRMER.

There was no material expansion in the volume of business passing in the Rubber Share Market, but with commodity values again on the upward trend, the share section presented a firmer appearance, and the few movements resulting from the day's business were mostly favourable to holders. As mentioned, a firmer tone ruled in the commodity market, while there was quite a good demand manifest for near positions. Spot and July stiffened from 10 11/16d. to 10¾d., while August closed at 10 13/16d., and October to December at 11⅛d. per lb.

DEALINGS IN LONDON MARKET.

The following dealings among active Stocks and Shares were "marked" in London yesterday:—Consols—54, ⅛, ¼, ½, 3/16, 5/16, ⅜, 5/16. 5 p.c. War Loan—100⅝, ½, 11/16, 9/16, 21/32, 13/16, *15/16. 4 p.c. Conditions in the short loan market showed little alteration from Thursday, business in loans over the night being done at 4 per cent., which was also the charge for renewing old money. A large business was again reported at the Bank of England, the market borrowing for seven days and over, while more bills were discounted.

The feature in the Discount market was the buying, as from Monday, by the banks of second half of July bills at 4⅞ per cent. Rates for fine commercial bills showed no quotable alteration apart from the three months' maturity, which was just a shade over 5⅜ per cent. Two months' were called 5 5/16 per cent., four months' 5 7/16, and six months' 5½ per cent.

At the Bank of England the sale of bar gold to the value of £217,559 was announced. Sovereigns to the amount of of £146,842 were received from abroad. The net efflux to date amounts to £2,375,249. A fair recovery took place in silver as a result of buying by China banks. Both the spot and forward prices rose ⅛d. to 24⅛d. per ounce, respectively. The market price of gold was unaltered at 84s. 11½d. per fine ounce.

At one time the New York exchange showed a further recovery to a shade over 4.85, but it finished unaltered at a little under 4.84 15/16. The Berlin rate was also higher during the day, having touched 20.36, but finished unaltered at 20.34½. France moved further against this country, and Italian lire and Hungarian pengoes appreciated somewhat, but Austrian schillings were distinctly cheaper, and Belgium, Switzerland, Holland and Denmark all quoted more for sterling.

ANOTHER MOTOR LIFEBOAT.

Another motor lifeboat is on her way to her station at Aranmore, Co. Donegal, to which she has been sent by the Royal National Lifeboat Institution.

She is the boat which for a number of years has been stationed at Clacton-on-Sea, Essex, where she has just been replaced by another motor lifeboat. She is a 45-feet boat of the Watson type, with a 40 h.p. engine, and already has the magnificent record of 277 lives rescued from shipwreck. There has been a lifeboat stationed at Aranmore since 1883, and its lifeboats have rescued 53 lives.

Ireland now has ten motor lifeboats in its fleet of 22 lifeboats, and another four are under construction or shortly to be laid down.

DUBLIN BUTTER AND EGG.—Butter markets rule firm to dearer, but with cautious response at buying end. Danish official quotations for near shipments come at a sharp rise, and with Irish creameries finding a popular sale on English markets producers here are inclined to take advantage of that move, and are looking for stiffer prices. Such may be tenable in the shipping direction, but on home markets the talk of higher rates has already exercised a curbing effect on trade, as at the retail end business has been unprofitable locally for some time. Fine creams 1/5½ to 1/6½ 28lb. packages, perhaps fractionally more. Mediums 1/5½ to 1/5¾, farmers' butter 1/1 to 1/3½ per lb. With a less encouraging outlook in shipping trade and moderate offtake of eggs for home consumption, markets have lapsed into a quieter groove generally. Everywhere, however, there is a keen enquiry for large grade hen eggs, which are scarcely 3, and at most but 5, per cent. of bulk coming in. Selected arrivals case hen eggs 11/9 to 12/6 and 12/9, extra picked retail parcels 13/5 to 14/6 per 120, good mediums 10/- to 10/6, smalls, etc. 9/ to 9/9, duck eggs 10/6 to 11/6 per 120.

OILCAKES, Etc.—Linseed cakes: Values generally in sympathy with other feeding stuffs are inclined to harden, and with Continental buyers again coming into the market there is every indication of a firmer range of prices being established during the next few months, while for winter delivery already quite a substantial premium is asked by shippers, which for the moment, however, meets with very little response, but on the other hand, country merchants are more disposed to replenish their stocks in anticipation of an early improvement in the consumptive demand. Best London-made sell quietly at £12 to £12 5/-, and foreign descriptions attract rather more attention, being relatively good value at £11 15/- for the finest quality Calcuttas and £11 5/- for 40 p.c. screw-pressed Bombays shortly due.
